Supreme Court upholds schools' right to paddle

School officials Monday said they expect no increase in the amount of paddling in local schools now that the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the right of schools to use corporal punishment.

The high court, in a brief order Monday, refused to overturn an appeals court decision on a case of a Gibsonville, N.C., woman who claimed her son was subjected to "cruel and unusual punishment" when he was paddled by his teacher.

Virginia Baker filed suit in 1973 after her son, then in the sixth grade, was paddled on the buttocks with a wooden drawer divider after he threw a ball in violation of school rules.

THE APPEALS COURT rejected Mrs. Baker's claim that her son was subjected to "cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Constitution.

The court said "reasonable corporal punishment for disciplinary purposes" is permissible, but said, "except for those acts of misconduct which are so antisocial or disruptive in nature as to shock the conscience" the student must be given certain due process rights.

Corporal punishment has been ruled legal by numerous court decisions in Illinois. A move by the Illinois General Assembly to outlaw the practice was defeated last spring.

The Illinois Office of Education has a rule which says a parent may specifically forbid school officials to use corporal punishment on his child. Officials of the state office did not comment Monday on what effect the court ruling will have on that rule.

Several local school officials said their districts have written policies against corporal punishment or actively discourage its use. Supt. Roger Bardwell of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 said, "We discourage that kind of way of solving problems of pupil behavior," and said the court ruling would not change that.

SUPT. EARL Sutter of Mount Prospect Dist. 57 said, "I wouldn't think it (the decision) would have any substantial effect on our operation. As a method of pupil control it (corporal punishment) has serious limitations. Ordinarily we would be hopeful that we would have more effective means."

Supt. John Fridlund of River Trails Dist. 26 said that district makes no mention of corporal punishment in its discipline policies, but does say discipline should have an "educational orientation" and "a basis in rationality."

Fridlund said, "My first reaction is that (the court) decision is a good decision that makes the school responsible for the behavior of students aside from the question of corporal punishment."

Several school officials said the need for a teacher to physically restrain a student during a fight is much more likely to occur than corporal punishment.

Bruce Altergott, associate superintendent for High School Dist. 211, said, "As a general rule we do not believe in corporal punishment," but said a student may be restrained for his own protection or the protection of others.

Vote urged on at-large government

The Arlington Heights Village Board will hold a special meeting to discuss a referendum to change the form of village government from at-large to district representation.

Citing what he called a "ground swell of support" for the change, Village Pres. James T. Ryan urged the board to schedule the referendum regardless of their personal feelings on the controversial question.

The special meeting is expected within two to three weeks and likely will draw comments from leading citizens who have voiced opinions in the past on the issue.

"It's not so important how individual trustees feel pro or con, but rather that we be in consort in allowing our citizens to choose. I don't think anything could be more democratic than that," Ryan said.

James Ryan

A CHANGE TO electing trustees from specific geographic districts rather than from the village at large was a major plank in Ryan's April campaign platform.

"We are no longer a town of 10,000 people. We are fast approaching 80,000 people living within a great number of square miles," he said.

Ryan called a change in the form of government "a kind of matter that goes to referendum." He also cited the board's recent commitment to hold a referendum on a proposed Chicago Bears football stadium at Arlington Park race track had the project been judged financially possible.

The call for a special board meeting was supported by all trustees except Richard Durava who tried unsuccessfully to have the matter referred to a blue-ribbon citizens' committee.

"If we're going to talk about being democratic, then we ought to name a group of citizens, not politicians with a vested interest, to look into the matter," Durava said.

Formation of a special citizens' commission committee — which could stall an eventual referendum for months — may be discussed at the upcoming special board meeting. A blue-ribbon Form of Government (FOG) committee studied the matter five years ago and recommended that Arlington Heights retain the at-large system but increase the size of the village board from seven to the present nine members.

Critics of the FOG committee charged at the time that the group went into the question with the intent of preserving the at-large system and agreed to recommend expansion of the board as a compromise alternative to district representation.

Ryan has said he wants the referendum scheduled before the next general village election in 1977. Details of how the district form of government would be implemented if approved by the voters still must be studied.

Lost birthday card stolen in burglary

A birthday card containing $2 was stolen in a burglary at Miner Junior High School, Arlington Heights, police said Monday.

Everett Charlier, assistant principal, said a student turned in the envelope with the card and cash after he found it on the playground. It was being kept in the school's attendance office until burglars broke into the school sometime between 6 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Monday, police said.

Also stolen was $10 in cash from a small safe, police were told. Entry to the building at 1101 E. Miner St. was gained by breaking a window in the principal's office, police said.

This house will be known as the "White House."

Suburbs lose veto power in county

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Suburbanites lost their power to veto county government spending Monday when county commissioners from Chicago outmaneuvered suburban board members.

The county board adopted an ordinance which changed the two-thirds vote required for major expenditures to a simple majority.

The changes leave the six suburban commissioners with no power to force compromise on the 10 county Democratic commissioners. It brings to an end a one-year period in which suburban commissioners theoretically were able to veto expenditures of more than $5,000, as long as they voted as a bloc.

The ordinance change wipes out any benefit suburban residents received when a sixth suburban seat was created.

THE FIVE Republican commissioners who attended Monday's board meeting said they would meet with county State's Attorney Bernard Carey to determine whether a lawsuit could successfully overturn the ordinance.

The vote to change the two-thirds vote for spending followed party lines.

Immediate effects of the ordinance will include scuttling a Republican plan to force major cuts in the 1976 county budget to be approved in December. Suburban commissioners said Monday that without their six-seat veto they will not be able to stop any specific appropriation.

"What impact can you have on the budget if you're robbed of your vote?" Comr. Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect said after the meeting.

Comr. Mary McDonald said the ordinance was unjust because more than half of the county's tax revenue comes from suburban areas.

VETERAN COMR. Joseph Woods said, "You're disenfranchising most

Dist. 23 teachers, board OK contract

by MARILYN McDONALD

Teachers and board members in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 approved a 1975-76 salary settlement in separate meetings Monday.

Teachers voted 50-16 Monday afternoon to accept a $90,000 increase in money spent for merit and across-the-board raises, said Kenneth Bates, chief spokesman for the teacher negotiating team.

The money will be divided to provide all veteran Dist. 23 teachers with a 6 per cent across-the-board raise, plus a merit award of $489, $390, or $235, depending on the level of their evaluations last year, Bates said.

NEW TEACHERS will now start at a base salary of $8,950 with a bachelor's degree and no experience, or at $9,502 with a master's degree and no experience.

IN ADDITION to the $90,000 salary settlement, the agreement will provide teachers with 21.5 per cent of any additional state aid the district receives over and above the $902,000 district

Bicentennial bison backed

Buffalo Grove may have its own herd of buffalo by next year.

The village's Bicentennial commission has unanimously backed a proposal to buy a bull and two heifers for $4,500 from a Marengo, Ill., buffalo breeder to celebrate the nation's 200th birthday.

Tom Fitzgerald, chairman of the bicentennial commission, said Wednesday the group will work toward purchase of the animals, provided it can raise the necessary funds.

"We're still in the planning stage on this," said Fitzgerald. "But we'd like to get several fundraising events going so we can buy them. We feel the village should have its own buffalo."

FITZGERALD SAID John Banghart, the Marengo buffalo dealer, has quoted the group a price of $4,500 for the three animals.

While the commission is working with the village on the project, plans do not call for tax money to be used. Fitzgerald said the animals should be purchased from funds raised specifically for the project.

"This is not the kind of thing that we should dip into the village coffers for," said Fitzgerald. "We'd like to be able to raise all of the money from contributions."

Fitzgerald said the commission plans to discuss possible fundraising activities at its Nov. 20 meeting.

Although the commission is solidly behind the purchase, arrangements are still up in the air regarding where the buffalo can be kept.

Trial prosecutor charges

'Fulle asked $69,000 in payoffs'

Comr. Floyd Fulle set the price of $69,000 in county zoning payoffs by asking two contractors "what the Democrats are getting," a Federal prosecutor charged Monday.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Howard Hoffmann told the jury of eight women and four men that Fulle "abused the public trust in his office" by demanding extortion payoffs to influence zoning of apartment projects in the Northwest suburbs.

Fulle, 666 Laurel, Des Plaines, was charged Feb. 13 with seven counts of extortion, perjury and income tax fraud by a Federal grand jury.

Hoffmann opened the trial before U.S. Dist. Court Judge Bernard M. Decker by outlining a series of seven payoffs from developer Thomas Origer to Fulle from 1966 to 1970 and two payoffs from contractor William J. Adams in 1970.

FULLE, A COUNTY board member since 1966 and chairman of the county Republican party organization, used power to defer rezoning petitions until the two contractors agreed to payoff demands, Hoffmann said.

Fulle is the highest GOP official indicted by former U.S. Atty. James Thompson, who is now a Republican party candidate for governor.

Fulle began a series of extortion demands in 1966 when Origer petitioned for multiple-family zoning of 7.5 acres in Maine Township.

"Fulle said he knew the Democrats were getting big money. Origer said, 'That's true about $5,000.' Mrs. Fulle asked for half," Hoffmann said.

"What are the Democrats getting?" Fulle asked in September 1967 when Origer petitioned for rezoning of 18 acres in the Northwest suburbs, Hoffmann said.

" 'You're going to make a killing. I (Fulle) want the same.' Origer offered $5,000 and they finally settled on $7,500," Hoffmann said.

FULLE HAS denied the charges. His attorneys will reopen the trial about 11 a.m. today with a defense statement.

Hoffmann revealed Monday that:

• Origer, former owner of the Chicago Fire football team, received extortion credit from Fulle for three election contributions, including payment of $2,500 to former governor Richard Ogilvie's 1968 campaign.

The $2,500 check, dated May 20, 1968, was passed in a county board washroom, where Fulle told Origer that "lots of business is done," Hoffmann said.

• "Other county employes" received more than $55,000 in payoffs to influence zoning of the Old Madrid apartment complex in Palatine Twp.

The Old Madrid project was rezoned in 1970 after Adams, head of a plumbing and heating firm, delivered $20,000 in cash to Fulle for the project developer, Sellegren, Inc.

The Sellegren payoff came after Fulle deferred rezoning of the 66 acres five times, Hoffmann said.

When Adams discussed with Fulle the deferrals in March 1970, he asked "Does it take money?" Hoffmann said.

"Well, that helps," Fulle answered, according to Hoffman.

"Would $20,000 help?" Adams asked, Hoffmann said.

"The $20,000 was used as the cash downpayment for a Florida vacation home, Hoffmann said. Fulle allegedly lied to a Federal grand jury and claimed the house purchase price was $35,000 to conceal $10,000 of the payoff, Hoffmann said.

DECKER BEGAN the hearing Monday by denying a defense motion for assignment of a new judge.

The motion charged that Decker is prejudiced against defense attorneys Arthur Zimmerman and William Jacobs.

Decker had dismissed a $917 million civil suit, filed by Zimmerman and Jacobs last week with the comment, "The complaint makes it hard to determine whether the flaws of the pleadings are due to overzealousness, incompetence, frivolity or design to harass."

The suit was filed for the Gordon Mertes family against Barrington Hills police and school officials after a raid of Merten's home.

Jacobs repeatedly argued with Decker during jury examination. Decker ordered sequestering of the jury after asking defense attorneys, "whether they expect to give interviews during this trial."

Decker adjourned the hearing Monday by ordering a "gag" on attorneys in this case. Thompson requested a "gag" order last spring after Fulle called possible defense witnesses, "liars," but the order was denied by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Abraham L. Marovitz, who originally was scheduled to hear the case.

Herald wins 2 awards from Inland Press Assn.

Two awards were received by The Herald Monday in the Inland Daily Press Assn's. local government reporting contest.

An honorable mention was given The Herald in the investigative reporting category for a series of articles on drunken driving; an honorable mention also was received for interpreting a complex public issue in a series of articles about medical malpractice.

Attending Inland's 90th anniversary meeting in Chicago to accept the awards was Daniel E. Baumann, vice president and editor.

The series on the disposition of drunken driving cases in suburban courts was written by Toni Ginnetti and Al Messerschmidt and involved months of research. Contest judges commented:

"THIS VALUABLE series imaginatively used computer technology to analyze thousands of drunken driving arrest records and court cases. Combined with extensive interviews and direct observation of hundreds of trials, the result provided a comprehensive picture of area law enforcement patterns. Complex legal and human problems were brought out and made the basis for an informative discussion for various proposals to improve the court system."

The series on medical malpractice suits was written by Karen Blecha. The judges commented:

"This series is an admirable example of enterprise in bringing a national issue home to local readers. The leads were compelling and the background facts are woven in with local detail to keep readers involved."

The contest is judged by members of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin School of Journalism.

Correction

The Herald regrets any confusion created by an erroneous headline over a story in Monday's edition about the teachers strike in Dist. 54. In a mechanical department error, the word "principle" was changed to "principal," altering the meaning of the headline.

Trial prosecutor charges

'Fulle asked $69,000 in payoffs'

Comr. Floyd Fulle set the price of $69,000 in county zoning payoffs by asking two contractors "what the Democrats are getting," a Federal prosecutor charged Monday.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Howard Hoffmann told the jury of eight women and four men that Fulle "abused the public trust in his office" by demanding extortion payoffs to influence zoning of apartment projects in the Northwest suburbs.

Fulle, 666 Laurel, Des Plaines, was charged Feb. 13 with seven counts of extortion, perjury and income tax fraud by a Federal grand jury.

Hoffmann opened the trial before U.S. Dist. Court Judge Bernard M. Decker by outlining a series of seven payoffs from developer Thomas Origer to Fulle from 1966 to 1970 and two payoffs from contractor William J. Adams in 1970.

FULLE, A COUNTY board member since 1966 and chairman of the county Republican party organization, used power to defer rezoning petitions until the two contractors agreed to payoff demands, Hoffmann said.

Fulle is the highest GOP official indicted by former U.S. Atty. James Thompson, who is now a Republican party candidate for governor.

Fulle began a series of extortion demands in 1966 when Origer petitioned for multiple-family zoning of 7.5 acres in Maine Township.

"Fulle said he knew the Democrats were getting big money. Origer said, 'That's true about $5,000.' Mrs. Fulle asked for half," Hoffmann said.

"What are the Democrats getting?" Fulle asked in September 1967 when Origer petitioned for rezoning of 18 acres in the Northwest suburbs, Hoffmann said.

" 'You're going to make a killing. I (Fulle) want the same.' Origer offered $5,000 and they finally settled on $7,500," Hoffmann said.

FULLE HAS denied the charges. His attorneys will reopen the trial about 11 a.m. today with a defense statement.

Hoffmann revealed Monday that:

• Origer, former owner of the Chicago Fire football team, received extortion credit from Fulle for three election contributions, including payment of $2,500 to former governor Richard Ogilvie's 1968 campaign.

The $2,500 check, dated May 20, 1968, was passed in a county board washroom, where Fulle told Origer that "lots of business is done," Hoffmann said.

• "Other county employes" received more than $55,000 in payoffs to influence zoning of the Old Madrid apartment complex in Palatine Twp.

The Old Madrid project was rezoned in 1970 after Adams, head of a plumbing and heating firm, delivered $20,000 in cash to Fulle for the project developer, Sellegren, Inc.

The Sellegren payoff came after Fulle deferred rezoning of the 66 acres five times, Hoffmann said.

When Adams discussed with Fulle the deferrals in March 1970, he asked "Does it take money?" Hoffmann said.

"Well, that helps," Fulle answered, according to Hoffman.

"Would $20,000 help?" Adams asked, Hoffmann said.

"The $20,000 was used as the cash downpayment for a Florida vacation home, Hoffmann said. Fulle allegedly lied to a Federal grand jury and claimed the house purchase price was $35,000 to conceal $10,000 of the payoff, Hoffmann said.

DECKER BEGAN the hearing Monday by denying a defense motion for assignment of a new judge.

The motion charged that Decker is prejudiced against defense attorneys Arthur Zimmerman and William Jacobs.

Decker had dismissed a $917 million civil suit, filed by Zimmerman and Jacobs last week with the comment, "The complaint makes it hard to determine whether the flaws of the pleadings are due to overzealousness, incompetence, frivolity or design to harass."

The suit was filed for the Gordon Mertes family against Barrington Hills police and school officials after a raid of Merten's home.

Jacobs repeatedly argued with Decker during jury examination. Decker ordered sequestering of the jury after asking defense attorneys, "whether they expect to give interviews during this trial."

Decker adjourned the hearing Monday by ordering a "gag" on attorneys in this case. Thompson requested a "gag" order last spring after Fulle called possible defense witnesses, "liars," but the order was denied by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Abraham L. Marovitz, who originally was scheduled to hear the case.

Herald wins 2 awards from Inland Press Assn.

Two awards were received by The Herald Monday in the Inland Daily Press Assn's. local government reporting contest.

An honorable mention was given The Herald in the investigative reporting category for a series of articles on drunken driving; an honorable mention also was received for interpreting a complex public issue in a series of articles about medical malpractice.

Attending Inland's 90th anniversary meeting in Chicago to accept the awards was Daniel E. Baumann, vice president and editor.

The series on the disposition of drunken driving cases in suburban courts was written by Toni Ginnetti and Al Messerschmidt and involved months of research. Contest judges commented:

"THIS VALUABLE series imaginatively used computer technology to analyze thousands of drunken driving arrest records and court cases. Combined with extensive interviews and direct observation of hundreds of trials, the result provided a comprehensive picture of area law enforcement patterns. Complex legal and human problems were brought out and made the basis for an informative discussion for various proposals to improve the court system."

The series on medical malpractice suits was written by Karen Blecha. The judges commented:

"This series is an admirable example of enterprise in bringing a national issue home to local readers. The leads were compelling and the background facts are woven in with local detail to keep readers involved."

The contest is judged by members of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin School of Journalism.

U.S., Soviets reach grain sale accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford announced Monday the United States and the Soviet Union have sealed a five-year agreement providing for U.S. grain sales to Russia but are still negotiating possible U.S. purchases of Soviet oil.

The grain agreement, negotiated in Moscow, provides for a minimum Soviet purchase of 6 million to 8 million tons a year over five years starting Oct. 1, 1976. Ford said it represents $1 billion in annual export revenues.

The pact will also provide an "escape clause" for the United States should crop production fall short of need.

Ford also released a "letter of intent" with the Russians which says negotiations will resume this month for American purchase of 200,000 barrels of Soviet crude oil and petroleum products.

However, FEA Administrator Frank Zarb told reporters the crucial point is the price at which the oil will be sold and made it clear the United States wants "favorable" prices, presumably lower than the going world rate.

As a result of the grain agreement, Ford lifted an embargo on grain shipments to the Soviet Union that was placed in effect last August after the Russians had purchased 9.8 million tons of American wheat and corn.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said the Russians will be free to purchase grain from the current crop and estimated they may buy as much as 7 million additional tons before the long-term sales agreement takes effect next fall.

The deal was negotiated partly because of a public outcry by AFL-CIO unions that the Soviet grain purchases were forcing up domestic food prices.

Ford's decision to seek a long-term agreement, announced last Sept. 11, convinced the AFL-CIO longshoreman to suspend a boycott against loading the Soviet-bought grain onto ships.

AFL-CIO President George Meany quickly declared after Ford's announcement that the longshoremen were pleased with the agreement and their boycott "has been terminated."

"This is good news for American consumers and farmers," Meany said.

In a statement, Ford said the agreement "promotes American economic stability" and "represents a positive step in our relations with the Soviet Union."

"In this constructive spirit," he said, "the two governments have also committed themselves to begin detailed negotiations on mutually beneficial terms for a five-year agreement for the purchase of Soviet oil."

Ford said the American people will benefit from the grain agreement because it provides for regular and orderly Russian purchases of wheat and corn between the fall of 1976 and the fall of 1981.

Butz said the effect on bread and other domestic food prices will be "negligible," even if the Soviets buy 7 million tons more wheat and corn this crop year.

Ford said among the things the grain pact will provide are a stable, longterm foreign market; a more stable flow of payments from abroad; assurances to the American farmer the Soviets will be a regular buyer of grain at market prices; increased incentives for full production by the farmer, and increased job opportunities for American transportation workers and seamen.

GNP's quarterly gain best in more than twenty years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Income tax rebates and easing inflation boosted the national economy this summer to its biggest quarterly gain in more than 20 years, the Commerce Department said Monday.

After falling for 15 months and leveling off in the second quarter, the real Gross National Product increased 11.2 per cent in the summer quarter. It was the best quarterly improvement since the 12.4 per cent increase in the first quarter of 1955.

GNP measures the dollar value of all the production of farms, factories, mines and utilities and the services of government employes, doctors, bank tellers, insurance salesmen, dry cleaners and other nonproduction workers.

The GNP gain occurred primarily because consumers dipped into savings buoyed by tax rebates and $50 Social Security bonuses to buy durables like cars and home appliances. Wealthy Americans and businesses increased investment spending by a stunning 18 per cent.

Assistant Commerce Secretary James Pate said the tax rebates contributed to a "substantial increase in consumer spending, especially in durable goods."

Pate said consumers banked the money at first, which sent the savings rate up to an unusually high 10.6 per cent in the second quarter. But they began spending — reflected in a dip in the savings rate to 7.7 per cent in the third quarter — when auto prices dropped and other sales bargains were offered.

Higher sales boosted corporate profits, encouraging business to increase its investments in future production, Pate told reporters.

The real GNP was estimated at $804.6 billion at the end of the July-September quarter. That was up from $783.6 billion in the second quarter, which had improved only 1.9 per cent from the first quarter when the nation was nearing the end of the worst recession since the 1930s.

Contributing to the second consecutive quarterly rise in GNP was easing inflation that enabled consumers and investors to get more for their money. All consumer and business prices combined for GNP purposes increased 5 per cent in the third quarter, down from 5.1 per cent in the second quarter and 9 per cent in the first quarter.

When inflation is added, the Commerce Department said the GNP increased 16.7 per cent to $1.498 trillion. It was the biggest increase since the 18.9 per cent rise in the first quarter of 1951 during the Korean War.

Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said the improvement raised prospects for "continued strong growth in jobs, incomes and profits as well as for continued moderation in the rate of inflation."

Economic recovery will lag in Midwest: banker

From Herald news services

Economic recovery in the Midwest will lag behind that of the rest of the nation, a midwestern economist told a congressional committee Monday.

The continuing movement of employment opportunities away from midwestern cities to progressively wider areas around cities was cited as an irritant to the problem of slow recovery by Robert P. Mayo, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Mayo's prepared comments were presented at a day-long hearing in Chicago before Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., members of Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

Mayo said recovery for midwestern central cities would follow recovery in the rest of the nation and in total metropolitan areas as long as the job market continued to move as it has in recent years.

The hearing's first witness was Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. He told the committee he favored the government taking an active role in supplying public service jobs until private industry can expand and hire today's unemployed. He urged an "investment in people" by providing people with "public service employment until they can be absorbed by private industry."

When Percy suggested Daley's remarks about public jobs was contradictory with his remarks on the expansion of industry, Daley raised his voice.

"What we are concerned with today," Daley said, "is putting people back to work.

"And by God they're entitled to a better shake than they have been getting."

University of Chicago economist Milton Friedman also addressed the committee, saying "a sharp reduction" in government taxes, spending and deficit is the right long-ranged fiscal policy.

FIREMEN IN Mexico City work to free victim of subway train crash at the Tlalpan Viaduct station Monday. Some 43 persons were killed and scores injured in the two-train crash.

Mexico subway trains crash; 43 die

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A speeding subway train smashed into the rear of a second train stalled in a Mexico City subway station Monday, killing at least 43 persons and injuring scores more, authorities reported.

It was the worst subway disaster since the system was opened in 1969.

The final death count in the midmorning tragedy was uncertain. But Carlos Silva, commander of the government-controlled ambulance fleet, said he personally counted 43 bodies taken from the twisted wreckage.

A police official on the scene said there were "more bodies inside" and expressed fears that the death toll could rise to 50 or even higher.

A small army of emergency workers — at least 300 — poured into the crash site to pull out the dead and injured from the twisted wreckage.

Residents in the area donated sheets and blankets to rescue workers who threw them over bodies as they were brought out and piled into ambulances. One passenger rescued alive was a months-old infant.

Police said they were told by survivors that a passenger had pulled the emergency cord in the first train just as it was about to pull out of the station, stalling it on the tracks.

However, police said, it was not known why the engineer of the oncoming train did not receive some sort of signal showing that a train was still in the station ahead.

Gomez Zavala, 39, a worker in a paper plant overlooking the station, said:

"I heard the brakes squeal, looked out, saw sparks from under the oncoming train. There was a brief flame as it hit, but it died out. Three guys climbed out of a window of the stopped train, streaming blood. They all walked about 20 yards and fell flat in the street."

2 men charged in plot to kill Ford

A grand jury late Monday charged two men with plotting to assassinate President Ford by blowing up street sewers and shooting him at the state capitol in Sacramento, Calif., on the day Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme was arrested for pointing a gun at him. The alleged plot, revealed with the fling of the indictment in U.S District Court in Los Angeles, was the third apparent threat to Ford's life involving visits to California last month. The indictment named the suspects as Gary Steven DeSure, 32, of Warm Springs, Mont., and Preston Michael Mauo, 24, of Warren County Va.

Beame finds hostility on N.Y. rescue issue

New York City Mayor Abraham Beame ran into the threat of a filibuster in the Senate and a wave of hostile questioning in the House Monday in appealing to Congress to rescue his city from insolvency. One congressman told the mayor his appeal was humorous. Another said he should sell Shea Stadium. Another said constituent sentiment is running 30 or 40 to one against federal help.

Food stamp plan would save $1.2 billion

President Ford Monday urged Congress to save an estimated $1.2 billion dollars by limiting the food stamp program to poverty level families and eliminating 3.4 million persons from the rolls. Agriculture Secretary Earl E. Butz, presenting the administration plan before a Senate Committee, said about 1.4 million very low income families — "the poorest of the poor" — actually would have their benefits increased.

Moroccans rally for Sahara march

With more than 500,000 persons signed up, Moroccan volunteers begin converging on rallying points Tuesday eager to start their unarmed march into the Spanish Sahara to back Morocco's claim to the northwest African territory. Led by King Hassan II, who called Thursday for 350,000 men and women to march into the phosphate-rich colony, the trek is expected to begin Saturday. At the United Nations in New York, Spain asked the Security Council to appeal to Morocco to call off what Spain condemned as "an invasion" and to send a mission urgently to Madrid and into the Western Sahara.

Cut in gasoline supply scrapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate conferees voted Monday to scrap a provision to reduce gasoline consumption by cutting service station supplies, but agreed to require automobiles to meet gasoline mileage goals.

While the conferees voted, Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb told reporters the nation is worse off now than before the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo that put the phrase "energy crisis" into the daily language.

The conferees sought to eliminate differences between House and Senate versions of energy bills as a reply to President Ford's energy program. The legislation would authorize gasoline rationing, require some conservation actions, and keep a lid on oil prices.

Conferees voted to delete from the bill a section that would have kept the flow of gasoline to service stations at or below the 1973-74 level — when stations had trouble getting gas during the oil embargo — as a means of reducing consumption.

Consumption this year is running below that but rising. The conference staff described the idea of limiting gas station supplies as a "required shortage" to discourage demand. But the conferees' chairman, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., called it an "arbitrary and capricious" way to attack consumption.

The conferees did agree to a gas mileage requirement for autos that would force 1978 models—which come out in 1977 — to average 18 miles per gallon of gasoline, the 1979 models 19 and the 1980 models 20. Beyond that, the requirements would be set by the secretary of transportation, toward a goal of 27.5 miles a gallon in 1985 models.

Zarb said one sign of public pressure is that autos are getting more fuel-efficient. That shows "there is a vote being generated in the showroom."

In Milford, Mich., however, a top General Motors Corp. executive, Howard Kehrl, said at least part of the automobile fuel economy gains of the past two years will disappear by 1978 because of federally mandated clean air standards.

Kehrl, an executive vice president, said stiffer standards for 1977 cars would cause a fuel economy loss on individual models. But he said the firm's overall fuel economy average probably will increase slightly because GM will sell more small cars.

In the case of cars sold in California, already suffering a 10 per cent fuel economy loss compared with those in the other 49 states, Kehrl said, the penalty could amount to as much as 20 per cent next year.

As for fuel economy penalties in 1978, he said, "It could be anywhere from going out of business to none because we simply don't know how to meet those standards."

Israeli border patrol hit by Syrian troop gunfire

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Shots were fired from Syrian territory at an Israeli border patrol on the Golan Heights Monday for the first time in at least six months, military sources said.

A spokesman for the Israeli military command said none of the soldiers was hit by the small arms fire. The command said the shooting took place at dawn close to the cease-fire line near the village of Masadeh.

The sources said the soldiers could not see who was firing at them and did not return the shots.

In Damascus, a Syrian military spokesman said Syrian troops clashed with an Israeli patrol Monday and wounded four Israeli soldiers. He said the Syrians suffered no casualties in the clash near Quneitra.

According to the sources, at least six months have elapsed since there has been any firing from across the Syrian border.

Israeli forces last week shot and killed two Syrian shepherds who crossed the United Nations cease-fire line on the Golan Heights.

Earlier, Israel's Foreign Minister Yigal Allon warned that the U.N. had come one step closer to suicide with the passage by a U.N. committee with resolution equating Zionism with racism.

He told the committee he favored the government taking an active role in supplying public service jobs until private industry can expand and hire today's unemployed. He urged an "investment in people" by providing people with "public service employment until they can be absorbed by private industry."

When Percy suggested Daley's remarks about public jobs was contradictory with his remarks on the expansion of industry, Daley raised his voice.

"What we are concerned with today," Daley said, "is putting people back to work.

"And by God they're entitled to a better shake than they have been getting."

University of Chicago economist Milton Friedman also addressed the committee, saying "a sharp reduction" in government taxes, spending and deficit is the right long-ranged fiscal policy.

FIREMEN IN Mexico City work to free victim of subway train crash at the Tlalpan Viaduct station Monday. Some 43 persons were killed and scores injured in the two-train crash.

Mexico subway trains crash; 43 die

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A speeding subway train smashed into the rear of a second train stalled in a Mexico City subway station Monday, killing at least 43 persons and injuring scores more, authorities reported.

It was the worst subway disaster since the system was opened in 1969.

The final death count in the midmorning tragedy was uncertain. But Carlos Silva, commander of the government-controlled ambulance fleet, said he personally counted 43 bodies taken from the twisted wreckage.

A police official on the scene said there were "more bodies inside" and expressed fears that the death toll could rise to 50 or even higher.

A small army of emergency workers — at least 300 — poured into the crash site to pull out the dead and injured from the twisted wreckage.

Residents in the area donated sheets and blankets to rescue workers who threw them over bodies as they were brought out and piled into ambulances. One passenger rescued alive was a months-old infant.

Police said they were told by survivors that a passenger had pulled the emergency cord in the first train just as it was about to pull out of the station, stalling it on the tracks.

However, police said, it was not known why the engineer of the oncoming train did not receive some sort of signal showing that a train was still in the station ahead.

Gomez Zavala, 39, a worker in a paper plant overlooking the station, said:

"I heard the brakes squeal, looked out, saw sparks from under the oncoming train. There was a brief flame as it hit, but it died out. Three guys climbed out of a window of the stopped train, streaming blood. They all walked about 20 yards and fell flat in the street."

2 men charged in plot to kill Ford

A grand jury late Monday charged two men with plotting to assassinate President Ford by blowing up street sewers and shooting him at the state capitol in Sacramento, Calif., on the day Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme was arrested for pointing a gun at him. The alleged plot, revealed with the fling of the indictment in U.S District Court in Los Angeles, was the third apparent threat to Ford's life involving visits to California last month. The indictment named the suspects as Gary Steven DeSure, 32, of Warm Springs, Mont., and Preston Michael Mauo, 24, of Warren County Va.

Beame finds hostility on N.Y. rescue issue

New York City Mayor Abraham Beame ran into the threat of a filibuster in the Senate and a wave of hostile questioning in the House Monday in appealing to Congress to rescue his city from insolvency. One congressman told the mayor his appeal was humorous. Another said he should sell Shea Stadium. Another said constituent sentiment is running 30 or 40 to one against federal help.

Food stamp plan would save $1.2 billion

President Ford Monday urged Congress to save an estimated $1.2 billion dollars by limiting the food stamp program to poverty level families and eliminating 3.4 million persons from the rolls. Agriculture Secretary Earl E. Butz, presenting the administration plan before a Senate Committee, said about 1.4 million very low income families — "the poorest of the poor" — actually would have their benefits increased.

Moroccans rally for Sahara march

With more than 500,000 persons signed up, Moroccan volunteers begin converging on rallying points Tuesday eager to start their unarmed march into the Spanish Sahara to back Morocco's claim to the northwest African territory. Led by King Hassan II, who called Thursday for 350,000 men and women to march into the phosphate-rich colony, the trek is expected to begin Saturday. At the United Nations in New York, Spain asked the Security Council to appeal to Morocco to call off what Spain condemned as "an invasion" and to send a mission urgently to Madrid and into the Western Sahara.

Cut in gasoline supply scrapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate conferees voted Monday to scrap a provision to reduce gasoline consumption by cutting service station supplies, but agreed to require automobiles to meet gasoline mileage goals.

While the conferees voted, Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb told reporters the nation is worse off now than before the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo that put the phrase "energy crisis" into the daily language.

The conferees sought to eliminate differences between House and Senate versions of energy bills as a reply to President Ford's energy program. The legislation would authorize gasoline rationing, require some conservation actions, and keep a lid on oil prices.

Conferees voted to delete from the bill a section that would have kept the flow of gasoline to service stations at or below the 1973-74 level — when stations had trouble getting gas during the oil embargo — as a means of reducing consumption.

Consumption this year is running below that but rising. The conference staff described the idea of limiting gas station supplies as a "required shortage" to discourage demand. But the conferees' chairman, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., called it an "arbitrary and capricious" way to attack consumption.

The conferees did agree to a gas mileage requirement for autos that would force 1978 models—which come out in 1977 — to average 18 miles per gallon of gasoline, the 1979 models 19 and the 1980 models 20. Beyond that, the requirements would be set by the secretary of transportation, toward a goal of 27.5 miles a gallon in 1985 models.

Zarb said one sign of public pressure is that autos are getting more fuel-efficient. That shows "there is a vote being generated in the showroom."

In Milford, Mich., however, a top General Motors Corp. executive, Howard Kehrl, said at least part of the automobile fuel economy gains of the past two years will disappear by 1978 because of federally mandated clean air standards.

Kehrl, an executive vice president, said stiffer standards for 1977 cars would cause a fuel economy loss on individual models. But he said the firm's overall fuel economy average probably will increase slightly because GM will sell more small cars.

In the case of cars sold in California, already suffering a 10 per cent fuel economy loss compared with those in the other 49 states, Kehrl said, the penalty could amount to as much as 20 per cent next year.

As for fuel economy penalties in 1978, he said, "It could be anywhere from going out of business to none because we simply don't know how to meet those standards."

Israeli border patrol hit by Syrian troop gunfire

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Shots were fired from Syrian territory at an Israeli border patrol on the Golan Heights Monday for the first time in at least six months, military sources said.

A spokesman for the Israeli military command said none of the soldiers was hit by the small arms fire. The command said the shooting took place at dawn close to the cease-fire line near the village of Masadeh.

The sources said the soldiers could not see who was firing at them and did not return the shots.

In Damascus, a Syrian military spokesman said Syrian troops clashed with an Israeli patrol Monday and wounded four Israeli soldiers. He said the Syrians suffered no casualties in the clash near Quneitra.

According to the sources, at least six months have elapsed since there has been any firing from across the Syrian border.

Israeli forces last week shot and killed two Syrian shepherds who crossed the United Nations cease-fire line on the Golan Heights.

Earlier, Israel's Foreign Minister Yigal Allon warned that the U.N. had come one step closer to suicide with the passage by a U.N. committee with resolution equating Zionism with racism.

Ford cancels appointments to battle sinus congestion

People

• President Ford, on his doctor's advice, canceled official appointments Monday and stayed in the White House family quarters to battle a "sinus congestion, a tendency to cough and a slightly elevated fever." Press Secretary Ron Nessen said "it's just not possible to tell" how long Ford would curtail his activities.

• Former world poker champion Amarillo Slim has been arrested in Amarillo, Tex. on bookmaking charges. Slim, whose real name is Thomas Austin Preston Jr., was arrested with five other men. He was released on $25,000 bond.

• Air Force Secretary John L. McLucas has been nominated by President Ford to head the Federal Aviation Administration. McLucas, if confirmed by the Senate, will succeed Alexander Butterfield, who resigned last March.

• Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., underwent surgery in Washington Monday for removal of his gall bladder and a gallstone. Stennis "tolerated surgery very well with no complications."

• Country music star Conway Twitty plans to sing a Russian language version of "Hello Darling" when the Apollo-Soyuz spaceflight team makes its last stop in a nationwide goodwill tour at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville Friday.

• Sign of the times: "Get Even with Jaws — Eat more Fish." Dale Beaumariage, chief of Florida's Bureau of Marine Science, said the sign, in a Winter Park fish market, points out that more and more persons are hunting and eating sharks since the great white shark started gobbling up swimmers on movie screens. Beaumariage recalled that vengeance-minded Australians started slaughtering sharks in such numbers that the government had to take measures to protect the shark population. Smoked shark is considered a delicacy. Fresh shark meat is generally available in gourmet restaurants.

The heavy mail bag doesn't bother Angie Spacone, but she dislikes unfriendly dogs.

Angie Spacone

She braves elements—and dogs

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Angela "Angie" Spacone delivers mail five days a week, and she has the dog-bite scars to prove it.

The spunky letter carrier prefers to be called a mailman, doesn't mind mail-lady. "Mail-person doesn't mean anything," sputters Angie.

Five feet and one-half inch tall and not much over 100 pounds, Miss Spacone does everything any other postman does. And she doesn't hate dogs. She's just very, very wary of them.

"You can figure you'll meet up with at least one unfriendly dog on any new route," she explains her caution. (A full-time substitute carrier, Angela doesn't walk a regular route yet.)

Angie's grandfather is a retired mailman. He had hoped one grandchild would follow in his footsteps, he said, but he didn't expect it would be his granddaughter! Gramp's one complaint about the job he loved? Dogs.

ANGIE CAN'T explain the canine's aversion to mailmen. She has a pet of her own, Lady, a German shepherd of whom she is very fond. The Spacones put Lady out of sight when their mailman comes around. "She hates mailmen," Angie laughs ruefully.

The mail-lady concedes it might be the uniform, or the mailbag that sets a dog's teeth on edge, but she's not sure. She just knows unfriendly dogs frighten her . . . for good reason.

It would make Miss Spacone's and every mailman's job easier if pet owners would hold their dogs, keep them tied or in the house when the postman comes, she says. And though big dogs seem more threatening, that advice goes for small pooches, too. "They all bite!" says Angie.

Mailmen are not required to deliver mail where a dog is running loose and unattended. Angie doesn't. Confronted with a growling dog, she stops dead, keeps her eye on the dog and slowly backs away. It takes time to get out the dog repellent spray she carries, and she thinks the movement might trigger a nervous dog to attack.

WHY WOULD A winsome 26-year-old who planned to be an accountant choose to brave people's pets and the elements for a career? At first she just needed a job. Now Angela likes the work better than anything she's ever done.

She studied accounting at Harper College and Northern Illinois University, has worked in telephone information, as a receptionist, factory worker and bookkeeper. "Book work is too dry for me!"

Working outdoors is much more to Angie's liking. Walking keeps her healthy, and she likes being out on her own.

Carrying mail is a good job for a girl, in her opinion, because men and women are paid the same wages without any subtle role distinctions. And pay, benefits and retirement are good, and besides the job has a future. "Later on if I want to work indoors, I have the option to become a clerk without losing any benefits," she explained.

THE LACK OF tension (other than dogs and severe weather) also appeals to Angie. And despite that familiar daily routine, each day is different, she says.

The way people react to a girl in a mailman's uniform differs, for instance. Kids say, "Hi mailman." Then they giggle and remark, "Oh, it's a girl!" Fellows take a second look when they see she's a girl, and women look interested and smile or start a conversation, Angie reports.

Angie's day starts early. She's up at 6 or 6:30 and spends three hours "casing out her route, or throwing the mail," tying up bundles and loading the day's pieces on the truck. She parks her truck, loads her mailbag which generally weighs from 25 to 40 pounds.

"My feet and legs really hurt. I was dead!" Angela recalled her first two weeks walking a route.

TOTING MORE THAN 1,000 pieces of which 200 to 500 are flats (magazines and newspapers), tiny Angie traverses a relay (one street or two small streets) before reloading her bag.

Hot weather or cold, stormy or bright, she delivers postal pieces five hours daily, five days a week. "You very seldom see a fat mailman," she comments wryly.

On her days off Angie relaxes in her parents' Mount Prospect home where she lives with them and younger siblings. Because her mother is studying to be a teacher at De Lourdes Catholic College in Des Plaines, Angela helps clean house and cooks some. She enjoys quiet diversion such as TV, movies, sewing, embroidery and reading mystery novels, her favorite, "Ellery Queen." She also likes putting together tiny ship models.

How about dating? Marriage? Angie says she doesn't lose sleep over either. "At 20 when my friends were marrying, I got panicky. When I was 22, I felt what the heck? Now I am 26, if the right guy comes along, okay. I don't worry about it. I'm having too much fun!"

Bride Nancy Lahre wore grandmother's lavalier

Wearing her grandmother's wedding day lavalier as the "something old," Nancy Lahre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Lahre, Palatine, married Stephen Pronto. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pronto, Chicago.

The Sept. 20 ceremony took place at 4 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church of Christ, Palatine.

For her wedding Nancy chose an old-fashioned princess gown of white organza trimmed in lace and seed pearls. A band of applique flowers and pearls held her fingertip veil in place. Her cascade of flowers included Chapet orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Nancy's sister, Susan, her maid of honor, wore an apricot gown and jacket and carried a bouquet of white carnations, apricot roses, yellow daisies and apricot baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pronto

BRIDESMAIDS Kerry Jones and Pat Carkeek, both of Palatine, Jackie Campana, Arlington Heights, and Julie Brinkmeier, Freeport, Ill., were gowned similarly to the maid of honor and carried bouquets of white carnations, apricot roses and yellow baby's breath.

Best man was Charles Kennedy, Chicago. Also serving the groom were Philip Lorenz, Arlington Heights; his brother Paul, Chicago; his brother-in-law, Bruce Gura, Mount Prospect; and Carey Price, the bride's cousin of Plano, Ill.

A dinner reception for 140 guests followed at Allgauer's Fireside. The couple then left for a honeymoon in the New England states.

Nancy, a graduate of Palatine High School, works at the Hamilton Mint in Arlington Heights and attends Harper College. The groom, who also attends Harper, works at La Marche Mfg., Des Plaines. They are living in Buffalo Grove.

Dishwasher won't damage Teflon

The home line
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Is it all right to wash my small Teflon pans in the dishwasher? Two pans fit beautifully in the washer, but I'm wondering if the dishwasher detergent will damage the Teflon surface.—Mrs. Millie Oxley

The dishwasher will always do a better job with Teflon surfaces since it gets out all the food particles and oils from the tiny pores. However, you run a risk with the outside of the pans. They sometimes get dull or discolored in dishwasher use — because detergents have this effect on certain metals. Insofar as the Teflon is concerned, there isn't a thing to worry about. I'd urge preconditioning the pan before using again. Just a bit of cooking oil will do it.

Dear Dorothy: Your readers might be interested in two hints that have helped me in baking. After beating egg whites and combining them with sugar, I rub some with the thumb and forefinger. If it feels grainy, I keep on beating until the whites feel smooth. After mixing sugar and shortening, I add some of the flour mixture before adding the eggs. The mixture will not curdle, and the finished cake will have a finer, more even texture. — Mrs. Eugene C. Bryant

Dear Dorothy: This is the way I color sand: Sift some beach sand and use the smaller particles. Then spread out on a piece of heavy paper and rub the sand with colored chalk. Be sure not to use sandbox sand. It's much too coarse. — Anne Coolidge

Dear Dorothy: When we had a problem with rabbits eating our vegetables, we sprinkled on a little sulphur powder. They left everything alone. — Mrs. Moses Snader

University women collecting books for November sale

Two area branches of the American Association of University Women are asking for used books for a sale at Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, Nov. 7, 8 and 9.

Arlington Heights Area AAUW and Schaumburg AAUW are seeking books of all kinds: paperbacks, hard covers, children's, encyclopedias, National Geographics, textbooks, manuals and Readers Digests. Sheet music, records and posters are also welcome.

Both groups will use the proceeds for their scholarship funds.

DONATIONS TO the Schaumburg AAUW should be dropped off before Oct. 31 at either office of Nieman & Sons Gallery of Homes: 375 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates, or 815 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg. Further arrangements for donations can be made with Ruth Jonen, 837-8795, or Sue Braden, 882-7000.

Those wishing to donate to the Arlington Heights branch may call Jan Dahl, 398-0171, to arrange for pickup.

Gamma Phi Beta road rally

The second annual Gamma Phi Beta road rally, sponsored by Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter, will be held Saturday. Not a race, but a test of skill in determining the correct course from a set of clues and instructons, the rally begins at 8 p.m. Winners will be determined on the basis of the fewest number of miles needed to complete the course.

At the finish line will be food, beer and prizes. According to Barbara Small, chairman, "a spirit of adventure, a car and a full tank of gas should add up to an evening of fun and frustration."

The rally is open to all interested persons who may call Mrs. Sondra Hannafin, 358-5403, for information and reservations. Proceeds will go to the Palatine Senior Citizens' Center.

Wearing her grandmother's wedding day lavalier as the "something old," Nancy Lahre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Lahre, Palatine, married Stephen Pronto. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pronto, Chicago.

The Sept. 20 ceremony took place at 4 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church of Christ, Palatine.

For her wedding Nancy chose an old-fashioned princess gown of white organza trimmed in lace and seed pearls. A band of applique flowers and pearls held her fingertip veil in place. Her cascade of flowers included Chapet orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Nancy's sister, Susan, her maid of honor, wore an apricot gown and jacket and carried a bouquet of white carnations, apricot roses, yellow daisies and apricot baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pronto

BRIDESMAIDS Kerry Jones and Pat Carkeek, both of Palatine, Jackie Campana, Arlington Heights, and Julie Brinkmeier, Freeport, Ill., were gowned similarly to the maid of honor and carried bouquets of white carnations, apricot roses and yellow baby's breath.

Best man was Charles Kennedy, Chicago. Also serving the groom were Philip Lorenz, Arlington Heights; his brother Paul, Chicago; his brother-in-law, Bruce Gura, Mount Prospect; and Carey Price, the bride's cousin of Plano, Ill.

A dinner reception for 140 guests followed at Allgauer's Fireside. The couple then left for a honeymoon in the New England states.

Nancy, a graduate of Palatine High School, works at the Hamilton Mint in Arlington Heights and attends Harper College. The groom, who also attends Harper, works at La Marche Mfg., Des Plaines. They are living in Buffalo Grove.

Happenings

Las Vegas Nite

The Association of Operating Room Nurses of Northwest Suburban Chicago is hosting a Las Vegas Nite Satuday from 8 p.m. to midnight in the Arlington Heights American Legion Hall, Douglas and Miner. Admission is $5 per person, which includes snacks and play money. Music will be provided by the "Platte River Crossing."

Prizes, donated by merchants of the northwest suburbs, will be auctioned off at 11 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or from any member of AORN. Proceeds will go to sponsor AORN workshops in the spring.

Barn dance

The caller will call to popular music rather than the traditional square dance music at the barn dance to be staged Saturday evening by the Sisterhood of Woodfield Jewish Congregation. The dance will be held at 8 p.m. at Ranch WJC, Hanover Park and the $10 per couple admission will include a late supper.

Eileen Paul, 893-3117, and Phyllis Cohen, 884-0085, are taking reservations.

Dishwasher won't damage Teflon

The home line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Is it all right to wash my small Teflon pans in the dishwasher? Two pans fit beautifully in the washer, but I'm wondering if the dishwasher detergent will damage the Teflon surface.—Mrs. Millie Oxley

The dishwasher will always do a better job with Teflon surfaces since it gets out all the food particles and oils from the tiny pores. However, you run a risk with the outside of the pans. They sometimes get dull or discolored in dishwasher use — because detergents have this effect on certain metals. Insofar as the Teflon is concerned, there isn't a thing to worry about. I'd urge preconditioning the pan before using again. Just a bit of cooking oil will do it.

Dear Dorothy: Your readers might be interested in two hints that have helped me in baking. After beating egg whites and combining them with sugar, I rub some with the thumb and forefinger. If it feels grainy, I keep on beating until the whites feel smooth. After mixing sugar and shortening, I add some of the flour mixture before adding the eggs. The mixture will not curdle, and the finished cake will have a finer, more even texture. — Mrs. Eugene C. Bryant

Dear Dorothy: This is the way I color sand: Sift some beach sand and use the smaller particles. Then spread out on a piece of heavy paper and rub the sand with colored chalk. Be sure not to use sandbox sand. It's much too coarse. — Anne Coolidge

Dear Dorothy: When we had a problem with rabbits eating our vegetables, we sprinkled on a little sulphur powder. They left everything alone. — Mrs. Moses Snader

University women collecting books for November sale

Two area branches of the American Association of University Women are asking for used books for a sale at Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, Nov. 7, 8 and 9.

Arlington Heights Area AAUW and Schaumburg AAUW are seeking books of all kinds: paperbacks, hard covers, children's, encyclopedias, National Geographics, textbooks, manuals and Readers Digests. Sheet music, records and posters are also welcome.

Both groups will use the proceeds for their scholarship funds.

DONATIONS TO the Schaumburg AAUW should be dropped off before Oct. 31 at either office of Nieman & Sons Gallery of Homes: 375 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates, or 815 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg. Further arrangements for donations can be made with Ruth Jonen, 837-8795, or Sue Braden, 882-7000.

Those wishing to donate to the Arlington Heights branch may call Jan Dahl, 398-0171, to arrange for pickup.

Gamma Phi Beta road rally

The second annual Gamma Phi Beta road rally, sponsored by Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter, will be held Saturday. Not a race, but a test of skill in determining the correct course from a set of clues and instructons, the rally begins at 8 p.m. Winners will be determined on the basis of the fewest number of miles needed to complete the course.

At the finish line will be food, beer and prizes. According to Barbara Small, chairman, "a spirit of adventure, a car and a full tank of gas should add up to an evening of fun and frustration."

The rally is open to all interested persons who may call Mrs. Sondra Hannafin, 358-5403, for information and reservations. Proceeds will go to the Palatine Senior Citizens' Center.

Twin sisters engaged

Marilee Anderson

Diana Anderson

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Anderson, Arlington Heights, announce the engagements of their twin daughters, Marilee and Diana.

Marilee and her fiance, Charles E. Gallagher, are planning a Nov. 22 wedding. He is the son of Gerald Gallagher, Chicago, and Mrs. Carol Johnson, Rolling Meadows.

Diana Louise is engaged to Paul Anthony Sorrentino, son of the Sam Sorrentinos, Palatine. They are planning a June 12 wedding.

Both 1973 graduates of Hersey High School, Marilee is employed by A.C. Davenport and Sons, Palatine. Diana is with the State Department of Transportation in Schaumburg.

Charles is a Forest View graduate and employed by Nixdorf Computers, Schaumburg. Paul graduated from Hersey in 1972 and Harper College. He is employed at Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Randhurst.

Proceeds from the sale help finance the band trips.

PINT-SIZED picketers joined striking teachers in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 in front of the Lakeview School, Hoffman Estates, Monday on the second day of the walkout. Dist. 54 schools will be closed today for the second day. The board failed in its attempt Monday to get a court injunction forcing teachers back to work with the judge postponing a decision until Wednesday.

officials now say they expect to receive, Bates said.

If Gov. Daniel Walker's state education budget cuts are restored by the Illinois General Assembly, teachers could receive an additional $10,000 for across-the-board increases, Bates said. That money would be divided among teachers for one across-the-board raise payable in June. Those raises would vary between .08 and 1.14 per cent, or about $120 per teacher, Bates said.

Board members unanimously approved the salary package Monday night. Teacher and board negotiators will meet Wednesday to iron out final details.

Once signed, the new salary agreement will be retroactive to the beginning of this school year. This is the second year of a two-year contract in which salary items could be renegotiated. Working conditions agreed upon last year remain the same.

IN OTHER ACTION, at their special Monday meeting, the board approved administrative raises amounting to an over-all 8.9 per cent increase in the amount spent on salaries. Salaries for three central administrators and six principals will amount to $193,300. Last year, $184,500 was budgeted for these salaries, but several new appointments have been made in administrative positions this year, resulting in several lower salaries.

The board refused to make public the individual salaries earned by its administrators after Assistant Supt. Gerald McGovern objected to having his salary announced at the board meeting. He said he was uncomfortable having his salary become the object of "conversation over the back fence."

During 1974-75, Supt. Edward Grodsky earned $27,600. Grodsky revealed he will now be earning $29,900. McGovern, who took over the assistant superintendency this summer, was hired at $22,100. James Hendren, business manager, earned $22,200 last year.

Shopping center, bank plans dead

Gerald Fitzgerald has abandoned plans to build a bank and shopping center on Arlington Heights Road near Paltine Road.

In a letter to Arlington Heights from his attorney, William J. Moore, Fitzgerald cited the current economic climate and the lack of progress on the planned Jack Jacobs shopping center immediately north of his property as reasons for withdrawing his petition with the village.

". . . In light of present economic considerations and the uncertainty of the development of the Jacobs tract," Fitzgerald said he was abandoning his plans for the Village Crossings Shopping Center on 6.5 acres in the 1600 block of North Arlington Heights Road.

He had presented plans for a bank and mall shopping center for the village several months ago. The plans had gone through a series of preliminary hearings during which the shopping center plans were modified to lessen the impact on neighboring residential developments.

Fitzgerald heads a chain of seven suburban banks. He has operations in Palatine, Cary, Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg.

Village gas line work to last 10 more days

Workmen from the Northern Illinois Gas Co. are expected to continue gas line replacement in the downtown area for another 10 days to two weeks.

A new gas pipe is being installed on the south side of Campbell Street from Ridge to Vail avenues, and from Campbell to Sigwalt streets on Highland Avenue.

The gas company received a permit from the Village of Arlington Heights to dig up a portion of the streets for the maintenance work.

Village public works director Gene Willroth Monday estimated it would take about two weeks to finish the job.

Priest's concert set at Episcopal church

Father Ian Mitchell, an Episcopal priest, will present a concert of country rock, folk, gospel and pop music at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 1 at St. Simon's Episcopal Church, 717 Kirchoff Rd., Arlington Heights.

Father Ian will be joined in the concert by his wife and children. Donations will be $3 for adults and $2 for children under 12. Tickets are available at the church office.

Planners approve office structure

A three-story office building on N. Arlington Heights Road was approved last week by the Arlington Heights Plan Commission.

The building, 3202 N. Arlington Heights Rd., will house professional offices. There will be no physicians or other medical ofifces in it.

The proposal was forwarded to the village board for final action. No date for the hearing has been set.

Little box turtle lives the longest

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Henry Kay, 10, of Tucson, Ariz., for his question:
WHICH ANIMAL LIVES THE LONGEST?

An animal inherits his life span. If his grandparents and his great-great-great grandparents lived very long lives, then he can expect to do the same. He does not always get what he expects. After all, he may run into a fatal accident long before he reaches his normal life span.

There are at least a million different animals in the world and, barring accidents, each species can expect to live so long and no longer. They start out as youngsters, become mature parents, grow old and die. Elephants and other big animals tend to live a long time, but life span is not entirely related to size.

For example, an elephant can expect to live about 60 years. The blue and red macaw, a parrot-type bird, often lives to be 64. The long-legged ostrich, biggest bird in the world, grows old and dies around the age of 50. An owl may live to be 24, and the splendid Canada goose may live to celebrate 32 birthdays.

A little mouse is an old-timer at the age of 2 and rarely lives much longer — unless he happens to be a pampered, tame mouse. Most of the fish are eaten long before they grow old, especially the small ones. Barring accidents, a little seahorse may live six years, but a rainbow trout can expect only four years.

A goldfish can expect to live 25 years, and a big halibut may live 40 years. So far as we know, the fish that usually lives the longest is the sturgeon, who may reach 50. Perhaps the bird with the longest life span is the raven, a smart fellow who may reach 70.

A tiger may live 11 years, but a lucky lion may live to see 25. On the farm, the sheep may live 15 years, the goats 10 years and the horses 30 years. Even a wild zebra can expect to live 22 years.

Some frogs live six years and the bullfrog may live 15. But some of the reptiles live longer than amphibians or fishes, birds or mammals. So far as we know the animals that live the longest are turtles. Some of the huge turtles of the Galapagos Islands have been known to live almost a century. But the ordinary little box turtle may reach the ripe old age of 123.

It is not an easy job to figure out the various life spans of the different animals. Some tend to live longer in captivity, where they are protected and well fed. Birds and other wild animals can be banded and checked, but this task is enormous. At present, the oldest old-timer seems to be the box turtle. But maybe other animals can live even longer than 123 years.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Lisa Thornton, 9, of Two Mountains, Quebec, Canada, for her question:
HOW ARE EARTHQUAKES MADE?

Earthquakes are made by the earth, which is a round ball as big as the whole world. We live on the outside crust, which is made of rocky and crumbly minerals. This outside layer is just a few miles thick, and under it there are other layers of different materials. The center is made of hot, heavy metals. Earthquakes happen in the top crusty layer, just under our feet.

They happen because the earth's crust does not fit very well. It is rather loose and broken up into huge chunks. Some of the chunks tend to slither around the globe, often in different directions. Sometimes two edges rub together and pull apart with a jerk. This is what makes an earthquake happen. The great slabs of moving crust shiver and shake, up and down and sideways — and so does the ground under our feet.

Ambitious, but unpolished dancers in Chicago Ballet

Mid-week review

by LYNN ASINOF

When you mix good dance with bad dance you get to learn the difference between the two. And that is one reason why it is interesting to watch the Chicago Ballet, which is providing ample contrast during its current second season.

The company is suffering from a lack of principal dancers, a fact that was painfully obvious last weekend as the troupe presented its second program. Promising young dancers were cast in roles way over their heads, and the result was an energetic but mostly unpolished performance.

The program was primarily classical, with only one piece capturing the magic that makes ballet exciting to watch. The peasant pas de deux from "Giselle" danced by Suzanne Longley and Dorio Perez showed that the company, at least in limited quantity, can compete with more prestigious troupes.

THE TWO flirted, frolicked and cavorted through the piece, each taking their turn to show off in the solo parts. Perez has a likable boyish quality to his dancing and moves cleanly with control. He works well with Miss Longley, who likes to tease the audience and puts character into her movement.

The "Raymonda Pas de Dix" looked solid during the corps work, with the four young male dancers proving able partners and moving with pleasant unity through their variation.

Many of the solos, however, looked shaky with dancers too unsure of their movements to add dimension to their roles. An exception was Diedre Grohgan, who projects wide-eyed innocence, and Pamela Mitchell, who has a lyrical quality that complements her clean, sharp footwork.

Miss Grohgan deserved better than her partner, Michael Bjerknes, who is not up to such demanding roles. While he has a nice elevation on his jumps, he doesn't have the necessary control to land quietly or to stop his turns without struggling for balance.

"Pas de Fiancees," set to a discarded section of the original "Swan Lake" score, suffered from the same maladies. Once again, the highlights included Miss Grohgan, who looked impressive in a series of fouette turns, and Miss Mitchell, who has a weightlessness to her movements.

THE ABSTRACT "Monotones II" again showed that the women of the company are more mature than the men. Bjerknes and Thomas Boyd looked uncomfortable while weaving Jennifer Holmes through a series of dramatic and exaggerated movements.

The troupe performs next Nov. 13-16 at the tiny chamber theater at 1016 N. Dearborn St., Chicago. The program will feature Ruth Page's "Romeo and Juliet" and "Bolero." The company will also perform "Courante" choreographed by artistic director Ben Stevenson to lute music.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with matinees at 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are $7 for all performances except the Saturday matinee which is $5.50.

DIEDRE GROHGAN shared top billing in the peasant pas de deux from "Giselle," performed last weekend as part of the Chicago Ballet's second program.

Short club bidding method has its place

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

When you use the short club properly there are several rules to follow. The first one is that you do not bid it when your distribution is anything except 4-4-3-2 or 4-3-3-3. The second is that you do not bid it when you only hold two clubs. The third is that you do not bid it when you hold four diamonds to an honor.

Another name for the short club is the junior notrump since in general it is bid when you have notrump distribution and are too weak to open one notrump.

In general when you open a club with -3-3-3 distribution and your partner does not bid your suit you should rebid one notrump and conceal your four-card major. Thus, South rebid one notrump, not one spade.

This time it is all rather unimportant. North-South would reach three notrump on any bidding system and make an overtrick.

Ambitious, but unpolished dancers in Chicago Ballet

Mid-week review

by LYNN ASINOF

When you mix good dance with bad dance you get to learn the difference between the two. And that is one reason why it is interesting to watch the Chicago Ballet, which is providing ample contrast during its current second season.

The company is suffering from a lack of principal dancers, a fact that was painfully obvious last weekend as the troupe presented its second program. Promising young dancers were cast in roles way over their heads, and the result was an energetic but mostly unpolished performance.

The program was primarily classical, with only one piece capturing the magic that makes ballet exciting to watch. The peasant pas de deux from "Giselle" danced by Suzanne Longley and Dorio Perez showed that the company, at least in limited quantity, can compete with more prestigious troupes.

THE TWO flirted, frolicked and cavorted through the piece, each taking their turn to show off in the solo parts. Perez has a likable boyish quality to his dancing and moves cleanly with control. He works well with Miss Longley, who likes to tease the audience and puts character into her movement.

The "Raymonda Pas de Dix" looked solid during the corps work, with the four young male dancers proving able partners and moving with pleasant unity through their variation.

Many of the solos, however, looked shaky with dancers too unsure of their movements to add dimension to their roles. An exception was Diedre Grohgan, who projects wide-eyed innocence, and Pamela Mitchell, who has a lyrical quality that complements her clean, sharp footwork.

Miss Grohgan deserved better than her partner, Michael Bjerknes, who is not up to such demanding roles. While he has a nice elevation on his jumps, he doesn't have the necessary control to land quietly or to stop his turns without struggling for balance.

"Pas de Fiancees," set to a discarded section of the original "Swan Lake" score, suffered from the same maladies. Once again, the highlights included Miss Grohgan, who looked impressive in a series of fouette turns, and Miss Mitchell, who has a weightlessness to her movements.

THE ABSTRACT "Monotones II" again showed that the women of the company are more mature than the men. Bjerknes and Thomas Boyd looked uncomfortable while weaving Jennifer Holmes through a series of dramatic and exaggerated movements.

The troupe performs next Nov. 13-16 at the tiny chamber theater at 1016 N. Dearborn St., Chicago. The program will feature Ruth Page's "Romeo and Juliet" and "Bolero." The company will also perform "Courante" choreographed by artistic director Ben Stevenson to lute music.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with matinees at 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are $7 for all performances except the Saturday matinee which is $5.50.

DIEDRE GROHGAN shared top billing in the peasant pas de deux from "Giselle," performed last weekend as part of the Chicago Ballet's second program.

Short club bidding method has its place

When you use the short club properly there are several rules to follow. The first one is that you do not bid it when your distribution is anything except 4-4-3-2 or 4-3-3-3. The second is that you do not bid it when you only hold two clubs. The third is that you do not bid it when you hold four diamonds to an honor.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Another name for the short club is the junior notrump since in general it is bid when you have notrump distribution and are too weak to open one notrump.

In general when you open a club with 3-3-3-3 distribution and your partner does not bid your suit you should rebid one notrump and conceal your four-card major. Thus, South rebid one notrump, not one spade.

This time it is all rather unimportant. North-South would reach three notrump on any bidding system and make an overtrick.

The way we see it

Compassion may require candor

The conclusion of life is a topic we often find too fearful to discuss with those most intimately involved — the dying and their families.

We avoid acknowledging an impending death and often invent facile little disguises to cover what all know is inevitable.

When death occurs, we mask our feelings about the ultimate human crisis and often talk, instead, about little things.

These are human reactions to dying, resulting sometimes from cowardice but more often from compassion.

There's mounting evidence, from the lips of dying persons, that this compassion sometimes may be misguided.

That evidence should force a reexamination on the part of all of us of the wisest way to approach our own deaths and those of our loved ones.

It is particularly important, we believe, for the medical profession to provide training for its members on the moral, ethical and emotional implications of discussing an impending death.

We are pleased that Northwest Community Hospital provided the opportunity last week for its staff to hear Lois Jaffe, a terminal leukemia patient, discuss this topic.

Most terminally ill patients, she pointed out, end up relying on hospital staff members for support. Warmth and encouragement provided by hospital workers are often a godsend for terminal patients. But sometimes that most difficult commodity in a crisis — candor — is what is really needed.

"My depressions come at 2 a.m.," Mrs. Jaffe told the Northwest staff. "That's when I feel the most alone. That's when I am most aware that no matter how near and dear my family is, I must die alone."

Aware of the nature of her illness, Mrs. Jaffe has found she is least afraid of the "stroke of death."

What she fears, she says, is being abandoned or isolated from her loved ones.

"If there is anything I need as a dying patient, it's to talk about my sadnesses, anger and frustrations."

Many terminally ill patients are deprived of such consoling conversations simply because they, their doctors and families are being too kind to each other to acknowledge dying.

We do not suggest that every terminally ill patient, under every circumstance, needs to be informed of his condition. But we do believe more needs to be known about the psychology of dying.

And we do suggest that compassion can be served in more cases by the frank acknowledgment — by medical specialists, family and patients — of this most sobering life experience.

Woodfield: a cultural center for NW suburbs

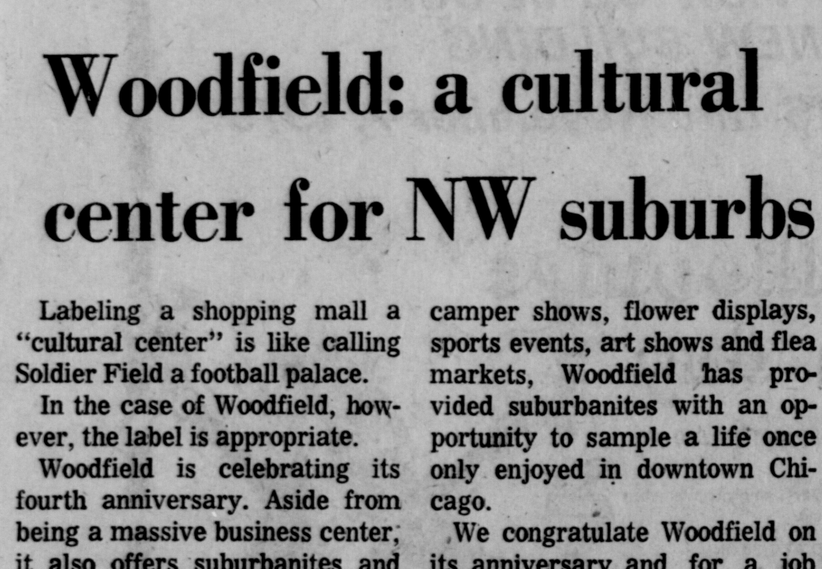
Labeling a shopping mall a "cultural center" is like calling Soldier Field a football palace.

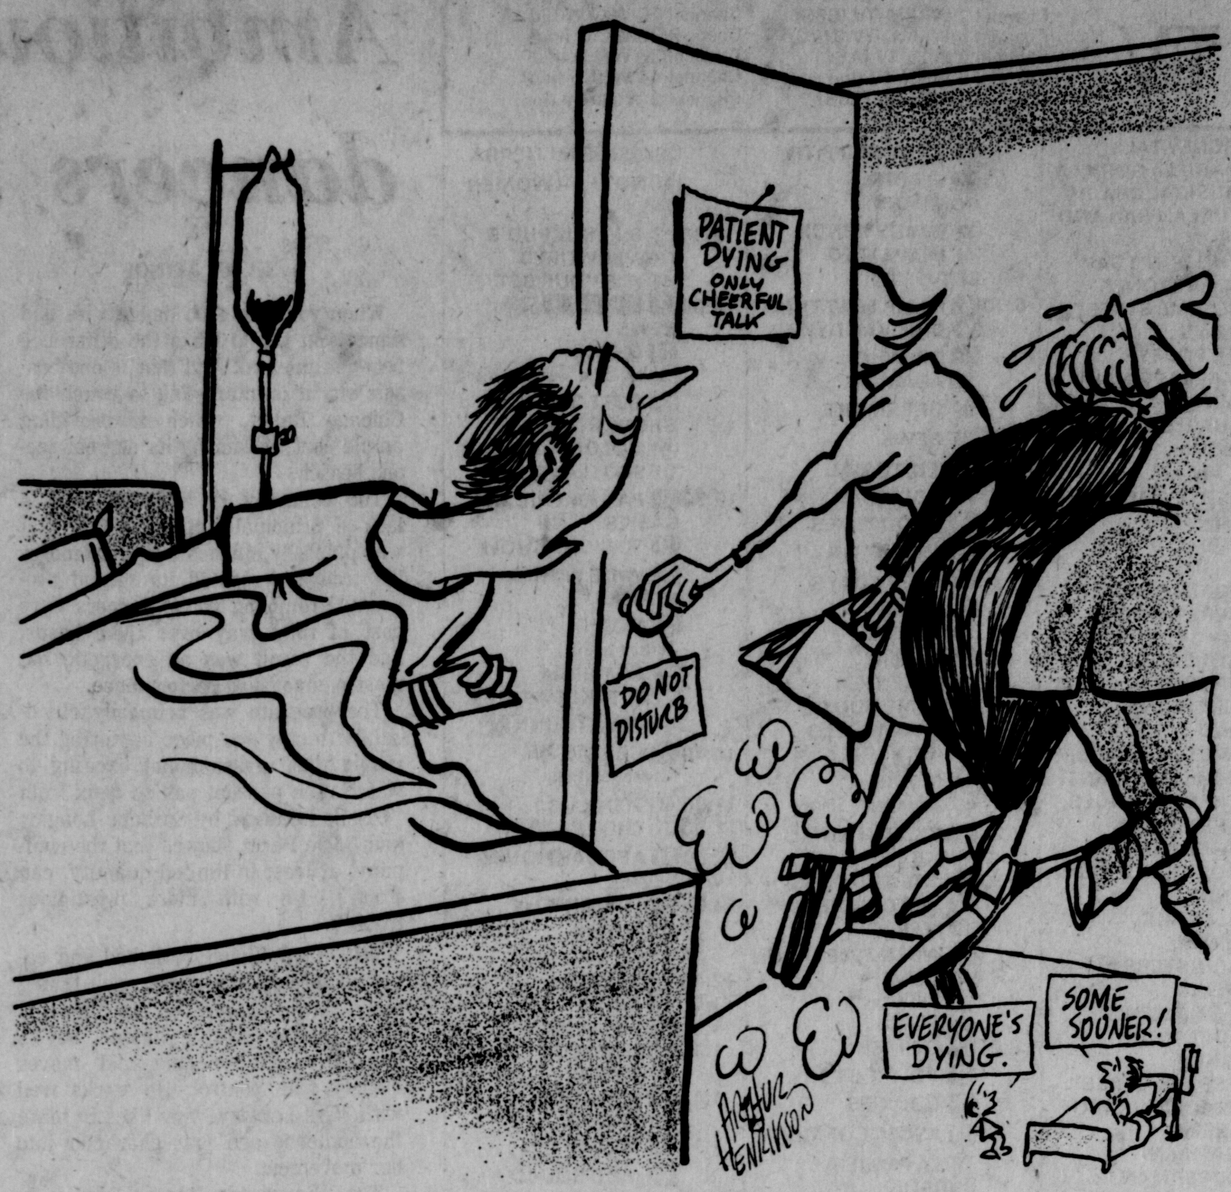
In the case of Woodfield, however, the label is appropriate.

Woodfield is celebrating its fourth anniversary. Aside from being a massive business center, it also offers suburbanites and visitors from throughout the Midwest a chance to come in and touch the world.

Through concerts, an opera, camper shows, flower displays, sports events, art shows and flea markets, Woodfield has provided suburbanites with an opportunity to sample a life once only enjoyed in downtown Chicago.

We congratulate Woodfield on its anniversary and for a job well done in providing area residents with a delightful place to be entertained, take a walk, watch people, and, oh yes, shop.





We all know I'm dying so what more important is there to talk about?

The almanac

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 21, the 294th day of 1975 with 71 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born this date are under the sign of Libra.

Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor and founder of the Nobel Peace Prize, was born Oct. 21, 1833.

On this day in history:

• In 1879, after 14 months of experiments, Thomas Edison invented a workable electric incandescent lamp.

• In 1917, the U.S. Army's 1st Division became the first American fighting unit to see action in World War I.

• In 1966, a coal-waste slide buried the Welsh mining town of Aberfan. Two days later, 135 bodies were found.

• In 1974, U.S. President Ford and Mexican President Luis Echeverria met on the border between their two countries and discussed a new oil discovery in Mexico.

Rumsfeld political stock soars; called 'unlikely' VP possibility

by NEA/London Economist News Service

WASHINGTON (LENS) — By temperament and habit Donald Rumsfeld, the coordinator of President Ford's White House, is well suited to exemplify the "candor" that Ford has adopted as the hallmark of his style of government. Warm in manner, easy in expression, brisk, approachable, Rumsfeld has a style distinct from that of his immediate predecessors.

He is also a politician whose accumulated experience is large for his age, 43, and whose future prospects can reasonably be thought bright.

Rumsfeld served six and a half years as Republican congressman from the northern suburbs of Chicago. Then he became assistant and counselor to President Nixon, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity and of the Cost of Living Council, and finally ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, where he was when Gerald Ford took over the presidency in August of last year.

Ford immediately asked Rumsfeld back to Washington to lead his transition team. That done, Rumsfeld returned to Brussels. But by October, he was back in Washington in a more permanent way, having "very reluctantly" accepted the post of assistant to the president, this time to take charge of the White House staff.

A history student from Chicago, Rumsfeld was graduated from Princeton and became a naval airman. After a while he decided against a military career and in 1957 became administrative assistant to Congressman David Dennison, R-Ohio, and then joined the staff of Congressman Robert Griffin (now Republican whip in the Senate).

In 1960, he went back to Chicago and into business. As he recalls, Congressman Peter Frelinghuysen of New Jersey advised it, pointing out that people who counted in Washington were there because they represented somebody or something: "He advised me to come back when I found myself in that position," and so he did, when the first opportunity presented itself, to fight for the Republican nomination and win the congressional election from the Thirteenth District of Illinois.

While he describes himself as "conservative essentially," his record does not altogether fit that of the conservative politician. He voted for the Civil Rights Act in 1964. He was active in congressional reform. He supported the idea of an all-volunteer army before it became generally accepted. He advocated greater access for the public to government information.

DONALD RUMSFELD

Still, it was a conservative outlook combined with political pragmatism that brought him to the fore in the first Nixon Administration. He was in his fourth term in Congress and his district was considered safe. But his involvement in an unsuccessful move to displace Les Arends as minority whip and in another, successful one against Charles Halleck as minority leader won him enough resentment from the Republican old guard in the House to block his advancement there. He was ready to leave Congress by 1969.

He agreed to give up his seat when President Nixon offered him, in addition to the job of running the Office of Economic Opportunity, an appointment as assistant to the president, cabinet rank, and membership of the Domestic Council.

The Office of Economic Opportunity, the poverty agency, came under fire from Nixon's White House, and Rumsfeld also drew criticism from the defenders of the poverty program when he sacked Terry Lenzner, the national director of the agency's legal services, in a manner that suggested political pressure from Nixon's private circle. His defense was that running the agency was a matter of "management, not politics."

As the pressure of politics grew, he withdrew to his other functions in his White House post. In 1971 Nixon made him director of the Cost of Living Council, where he decidedly had to keep clear of politics and devote himself to management.

The job kept him at a distance from the 1972 reelection campaign, and that may have been an advantage. In the reorganization of the Nixon Administration that followed the election he was released from bondage and appointed ambassador to NATO, and so when the Watergate events began to unfold he was away in Brussels. He came back to serve a new president.

Ford first noticed Rumsfeld in 1963, when, as a freshman congressman, he helped Ford to win a place on the House Republican conference committee. Rumsfeld supported Ford again in 1965 to unseat Halleck as Republican leader in the House.

Nearly 10 years later, Ford was unexpectedly president. He needed somebody to establish an orderly decision process in the White House, which President Nixon's chain of command was not.

Rumsfeld is usually credited with great shrewdness in making his career choices. He gives the credit to chance. "There has been no grand design," he says, and he describes his future as "a great blur." He still thinks he wants "to get out of this business," meaning the White House.

There is no sign that any such thing is imminent, though some rumors would have him, for instance, replacing James Schlesinger at the Defense Department, or, even less probably, aspiring to have the vice presidency. Ford had mentioned the possibility of nominating Rumsfeld for the vice presidency last year before Nelson Rockefeller was confirmed. But it seems unlikely that he would now seek that office from his present staff position in the White House.

He has by no means ruled out returning to the search for elective office. The first step back would have to be to reestablish himself in his home state, Illinois; he could seek the governorship there in 1976, or the Senate seat now held by Sen. Adlai Stevenson III in 1980.

Assuming that, as it appears, he is not going to leave the White House this year, the governorship is an unlikely option.

If he chooses a contest for the Senate seat in 1980, that allows him time to get out of government for a period and return to Chicago, to private life and to his political roots before making the next attempt. He will then be 48, as will Senator Edward Kennedy and doubtless ambitious for higher things.

The way we see it

Compassion may require candor

The conclusion of life is a topic we often find too fearful to discuss with those most intimately involved — the dying and their families.

We avoid acknowledging an impending death and often invent facile little disguises to cover what all know is inevitable.

When death occurs, we mask our feelings about the ultimate human crisis and often talk, instead, about little things.

These are human reactions to dying, resulting sometimes from cowardice but more often from compassion.

There's mounting evidence, from the lips of dying persons, that this compassion sometimes may be misguided.

That evidence should force a reexamination on the part of all of us of the wisest way to approach our own deaths and those of our loved ones.

It is particularly important, we believe, for the medical profession to provide training for its members on the moral, ethical and emotional implications of discussing an impending death.

We are pleased that Northwest Community Hospital provided the opportunity last week for its staff to hear Lois Jaffe, a terminal leukemia patient, discuss this topic.

Most terminally ill patients, she pointed out, end up relying on hospital staff members for support. Warmth and encouragement provided by hospital workers are often a godsend for terminal patients. But sometimes that most difficult commodity in a crisis — candor — is what is really needed.

"My depressions come at 2 a.m.," Mrs. Jaffe told the Northwest staff. "That's when I feel the most alone. That's when I am most aware that no matter how near and dear my family is, I must die alone."

Aware of the nature of her illness, Mrs. Jaffe has found she is least afraid of the "stroke of death."

What she fears, she says, is being abandoned or isolated from her loved ones.

"If there is anything I need as a dying patient, it's to talk about my sadnesses, anger and frustrations."

Many terminally ill patients are deprived of such consoling conversations simply because they, their doctors and families are being too kind to each other to acknowledge dying.

We do not suggest that every terminally ill patient, under every circumstance, needs to be informed of his condition. But we do believe more needs to be known about the psychology of dying.

And we do suggest that compassion can be served in more cases by the frank acknowledgment — by medical specialists, family and patients — of this most sobering life experience.

Woodfield: a cultural center for NW suburbs

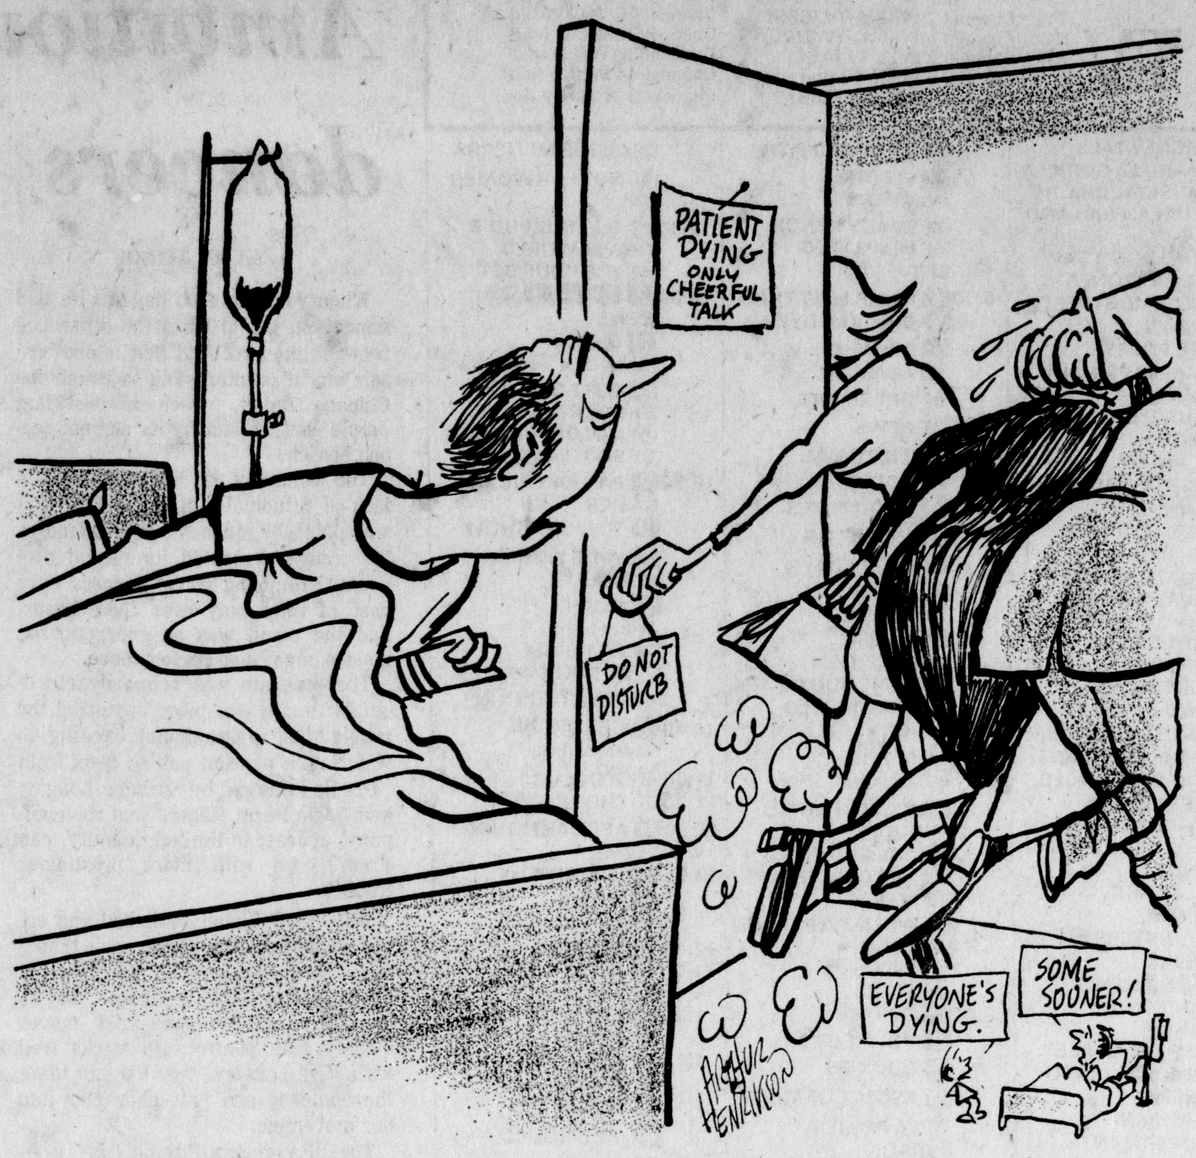
Labeling a shopping mall a "cultural center" is like calling Soldier Field a football palace.

In the case of Woodfield, however, the label is appropriate.

Woodfield is celebrating its fourth anniversary. Aside from being a massive business center, it also offers suburbanites and visitors from throughout the Midwest a chance to come in and touch the world.

Through concerts, an opera, camper shows, flower displays, sports events, art shows and flea markets, Woodfield has provided suburbanites with an opportunity to sample a life once only enjoyed in downtown Chicago.

We congratulate Woodfield on its anniversary and for a job well done in providing area residents with a delightful place to be entertained, take a walk, watch people, and, oh yes, shop.



We all know I'm dying so what more important is there to talk about?

Senate, Cabinet posts considered

Rumsfeld political stock soars; called 'unlikely' VP possibility

by NEA/London Economist News Service

WASHINGTON (LENS) — By temperament and habit Donald Rumsfeld, the coordinator of President Ford's White House, is well suited to exemplify the "candor" that Ford has adopted as the hallmark of his style of government. Warm in manner, easy in expression, brisk, approachable, Rumsfeld has a style distinct from that of his immediate predecessors.

He is also a politician whose accumulated experience is large for his age, 43, and whose future prospects can reasonably be thought bright.

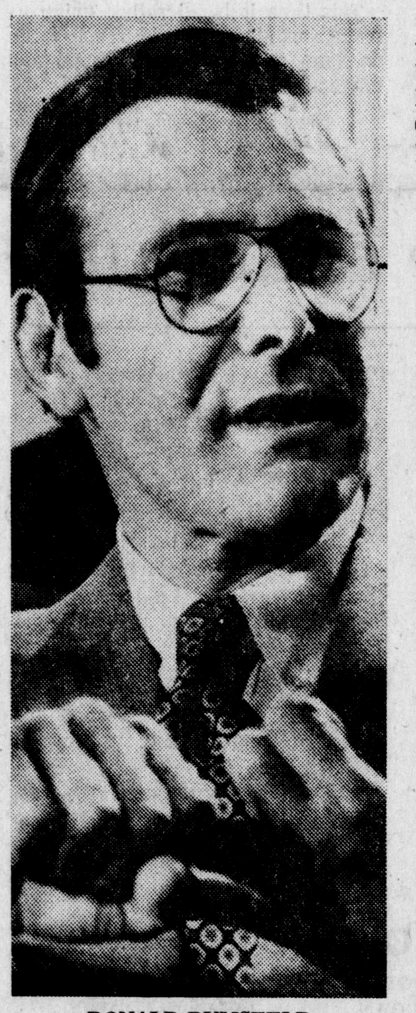
Rumsfeld served six and a half years as Republican congressman from the northern suburbs of Chicago. Then he became assistant and counselor to President Nixon, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity and of the Cost of Living Council, and finally ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, where he was when Gerald Ford took over the presidency in August of last year.

Ford immediately asked Rumsfeld back to Washington to lead his transition team. That done, Rumsfeld returned to Brussels. But by October, he was back in Washington in a more permanent way, having "very reluctantly" accepted the post of assistant to the president, this time to take charge of the White House staff.

A history student from Chicago, Rumsfeld was graduated from Princeton and became a naval airman. After a while he decided against a military career and in 1957 became administrative assistant to Congressman David Dennison, R-Ohio, and then joined the staff of Congressman Robert Griffin (now Republican whip in the Senate).

In 1960, he went back to Chicago and into business. As he recalls, Congressman Peter Frelinghuysen of New Jersey advised it, pointing out that people who counted in Washington were there because they represented somebody or something: "He advised me to come back when I found myself in that position," and so he did, when the first opportunity presented itself, to fight for the Republican nomination and win the congressional election from the Thirteenth District of Illinois.

While he describes himself as "conservative essentially," his record does not altogether fit that of the conservative politician. He voted for the Civil Rights Act in 1964. He was active in congressional reform. He supported the idea of an all-volunteer army before it became generally accepted. He advocated greater access for the public to government information.



DONALD RUMSFELD

Still, it was a conservative outlook combined with political pragmatism that brought him to the fore in the first Nixon Administration. He was in his fourth term in Congress and his district was considered safe. But his involvement in an unsuccessful move to displace Les Arends as minority whip and in another, successful one against Charles Halleck as minority leader won him enough resentment from the Republican old guard in the House to block his advancement there. He was ready to leave Congress by 1969.

He agreed to give up his seat when President Nixon offered him, in addition to the job of running the Office of Economic Opportunity, an appointment as assistant to the president, cabinet rank, and membership of the Domestic Council.

The Office of Economic Opportunity, the poverty agency, came under fire from Nixon's White House, and Rumsfeld also drew criticism from the defenders of the poverty program when he sacked Terry Lenzner, the national director of the agency's legal services, in a manner that suggested political pressure from Nixon's private circle. His defense was that running the agency was a matter of "management, not politics."

As the pressure of politics grew, he withdrew to his other functions in his White House post. In 1971 Nixon made him director of the Cost of Living Council, where he decidedly had to keep clear of politics and devote himself to management.

The job kept him at a distance from the 1972 reelection campaign, and that may have been an advantage. In the reorganization of the Nixon Administration that followed the election he was released from bondage and appointed ambassador to NATO, and so when the Watergate events began to unfold he was away in Brussels. He came back to serve a new president.

Ford first noticed Rumsfeld in 1963, when, as a freshman congressman, he helped Ford to win a place on the House Republican conference committee. Rumsfeld supported Ford again in 1965 to unseat Halleck as Republican leader in the House.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

Dateline 1775

(by United Press International)

ALBANY, N.Y. Oct. 21 — The provisional congress ordered all sulphur and brimstone in New York City shipped to safety up the Hudson River on grounds a British attack on New York seemed imminent.

County votes $2 million for RTA

The County Board voted to give $2 million to the Regional Transportation Authority Monday as part of a subsidy for the Chicago Transit Authority.

The vote came after Democratic county commissioners forced a change in the vote margin required to approve expenditures. An earlier vote on the CTA subsidy at the same meeting had failed to pass because of a two-thirds vote approval requirement.

Suburban county commissioners had tried to stop the $2 million donation because they said a larger share a $5 million local contribution should come from the City of Chicago.

Because suburban bus lines will receive more than $55 million from the RTA during the year, the county's $2 million contribution is "an absolute bargain," Comr. Martin Tuchow said.

THE CHICAGO City Council has approved a $3 million donation to the CTA this year. The $5 million donation from local governments is a statutory requirement before any federal or state grant money can be given to the CTA by the Regional Transportation Authority.

An RTA spokesman Monday said the county and city money would be used as part of the CTA's grant for the year because of the legislative intent in requiring the $5 million local contribution.

The fight over the CTA grant was the trigger for the move by Democratic commissioners Monday to change county spending authorization requirements.

Approval of the RTA grant came moments after the board changed its requirement so that only a majority vote, not a two-thirds vote, was needed to approve expenditures of more than $5,000.

THE BOARD reapproved a $100,000 appropriation to hire a consultant for a committee of suburban mayors which advises the county on distribution of federal Community Development Act funds.

Republican commissioners said the contract did not provide safeguards against low-and moderate-income housing projects in areas which oppose them.

of the people out in the suburban area."

Comr. Harold Tyrrell told the Democrats "You're only going to build a greater wall. You're only going to create more open warfare between the suburbs and the city."

Democratic Comr. Martin Tuchow proposed the new ordinance. He pointed to majority votes for spending approval on such government boards as the City of Chicago, the Metropolitan Sanitary District, the Chicago Park District and the Chicago Board of Education.

"What we sometimes have by this board is a rule by the minority, and the majority of the people suffer," Tuchow said.

Democrat John Stroger drew laughs from the audience when he said the board was using its home rule powers to eliminate rule by the minority and to "try to make ourselves more democratic."

Charged with trespassing

County won't let lesbians wed

by BARRY SIGALE

Two women who said they were lesbians were arrested for trespassing at the County Building Monday while protesting their failure to obtain a license to marry.

The women hugged each other as they staged a sit-down strike in front of a clerk's window in the second floor office of the Marriage License Bureau. They were ejected by Sheriff's police at 5 p.m. when the office closed. They were issued a summons to appear in 3rd District Court, Niles, today at 9:30 a.m.

"Marriage is the most meaningful way to declare my love for this woman," Nancy Davis, 22, said of Toby Schneiter.

THE TWO WOMEN, who live together in a near North Side apartment, said they would not eat again until they receive a license. They had soup and toast for breakfast about 6 a.m. before they arrived downtown at noon.

The license bureau refused to give the women the document they sought because County law prohibits persons of the same sex from getting married.

Miss Davis said the Illinois law is in violation of the U.S. Constitution and that they have a "democratic right" to take the marriage vows. They took the course of action they did "because we so desperately want a license," Miss Davis added.

COMPLICATING THE situation is the admission by the women that Toby Schneiter is already married and, therefore, the couple couldn't get a license, anyway.

"I don't want to spend $600 on an annulment process if they won't give us a marriage license," Mrs. Schneiter said. "What we want is an affidavit to guarantee they will give us a license if an annulment goes through."

MRS. SCHNEITER was married in Chicago in 1974 but said she hasn't seen her husband since a few days after the ceremony. She met Miss Davis last March. Both women are unemployed and share an apartment with other friends.

The women's course of action was calculated to bring the matter before the public and was announced in a news release issued last week by the Gay Rights Action Coalition.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

No cholesterol found in nuts

What is the cause of cholesterol in one's system? I understand that it comes from fatty acids in animal fats, butter, nuts, etc., but I wonder why some people have high cholesterol levels and others don't although each are on similar diets.

My cholesterol level is 343, and my physician has me on a diet and tells me the level shouldn't be over 250 at the most. I'm 58, male, in good health, no heart attacks, no high blood pressure. Will appreciate some help.

Cholesterol is only an animal product. I keep getting letters asking about it being in nuts. It is not. The rub is that excess fat in the diet, particularly saturated fat found in animal fat, stimulates the liver to form increased amounts of cholesterol. Excess calories may do the same thing.

Your doctor is right to put you on a diet. It may help lower your cholesterol level, and it should be lowered.

Cholesterol is formed chiefly by the liver. The liver acts in many ways as a regulator of blood cholesterol. In some people with certain inherited characteristics the liver tends to form more cholesterol, even if the person is skinny and on a good diet. In other persons, even when obese, the liver seems not to form so much cholesterol. This may be a genetic factor, just as diabetes can be.

The cholesterol in your blood really comes from two sources, that manufactured by your own body, chiefly in the liver, and that absorbed in your food. Only a few foods are really high in cholesterol. Chief among these are the egg yolk and organ meats particularly brains.

I don't have too big a problem, but would like some information. My hair stops growing after a while and doesn't get very long. I would like to know if there's some way to stimulate hair to make it grow.

Contrary to some overly enthusiastic advertisement, there is absolutely no way to stimulate hair to grow where you want it to. That is why a number of people have turned to hair transplants. If a treatment were available that caused hair to grow successfully, it would have been used.

There are some interesting experimental projects using hormones to stimulate hair follicles, but that is about it.

Your hair is like an evergreen tree, and some hair is lost constantly while new hair is growing. The cycle and other characteristics (some inherited) control the length of your hair. Obviously a slowgrowing hair with a short life span won't get too long.

County votes $2 million for RTA

The County Board voted to give $2 million to the Regional Transportation Authority Monday as part of a subsidy for the Chicago Transit Authority.

The vote came after Democratic county commissioners forced a change in the vote margin required to approve expenditures. An earlier vote on the CTA subsidy at the same meeting had failed to pass because of a two-thirds vote approval requirement.

Suburban county commissioners had tried to stop the $2 million donation because they said a larger share a $5 million local contribution should come from the City of Chicago.

Because suburban bus lines will receive more than $55 million from the RTA during the year, the county's $2 million contribution is "an absolute bargain," Comr. Martin Tuchow said.

THE CHICAGO City Council has approved a $3 million donation to the CTA this year. The $5 million donation from local governments is a statutory requirement before any federal or state grant money can be given to the CTA by the Regional Transportation Authority.

An RTA spokesman Monday said the county and city money would be used as part of the CTA's grant for the year because of the legislative intent in requiring the $5 million local contribution.

The fight over the CTA grant was the trigger for the move by Democratic commissioners Monday to change county spending authorization requirements.

Approval of the RTA grant came moments after the board changed its requirement so that only a majority vote, not a two-thirds vote, was needed to approve expenditures of more than $5,000.

THE BOARD reapproved a $100,000 appropriation to hire a consultant for a committee of suburban mayors which advises the county on distribution of federal Community Development Act funds.

Republican commissioners said the contract did not provide safeguards against low-and moderate-income housing projects in areas which oppose them.

of the people out in the suburban area."

Comr. Harold Tyrrell told the Democrats "You're only going to build a greater wall. You're only going to create more open warfare between the suburbs and the city."

Democratic Comr. Martin Tuchow proposed the new ordinance. He pointed to majority votes for spending approval on such government boards as the City of Chicago, the Metropolitan Sanitary District, the Chicago Park District and the Chicago Board of Education.

"What we sometimes have by this board is a rule by the minority, and the majority of the people suffer," Tuchow said.

Democrat John Stroger drew laughs from the audience when he said the board was using its home rule powers to eliminate rule by the minority and to "try to make ourselves more democratic."

Charged with trespassing

County won't let lesbians wed

by BARRY SIGALE

Two women who said they were lesbians were arrested for trespassing at the County Building Monday while protesting their failure to obtain a license to marry.

The women hugged each other as they staged a sit-down strike in front of a clerk's window in the second floor office of the Marriage License Bureau. They were ejected by Sheriff's police at 5 p.m. when the office closed. They were issued a summons to appear in 3rd District Court, Niles, today at 9:30 a.m.

"Marriage is the most meaningful way to declare my love for this woman," Nancy Davis, 22, said of Toby Schneiter.

THE TWO WOMEN, who live together in a near North Side apartment, said they would not eat again until they receive a license. They had soup and toast for breakfast about 6 a.m. before they arrived downtown at noon.

The license bureau refused to give the women the document they sought because County law prohibits persons of the same sex from getting married.

Miss Davis said the Illinois law is in violation of the U.S. Constitution and that they have a "democratic right" to take the marriage vows. They took the course of action they did "because we so desperately want a license," Miss Davis added.

COMPLICATING THE situation is the admission by the women that Toby Schneiter is already married and, therefore, the couple couldn't get a license, anyway.

"I don't want to spend $600 on an annulment process if they won't give us a marriage license," Mrs. Schneiter said. "What we want is an affidavit to guarantee they will give us a license if an annulment goes through."

MRS. SCHNEITER was married in Chicago in 1974 but said she hasn't seen her husband since a few days after the ceremony. She met Miss Davis last March. Both women are unemployed and share an apartment with other friends.

The women's course of action was calculated to bring the matter before the public and was announced in a news release issued last week by the Gay Rights Action Coalition.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

No cholesterol found in nuts

What is the cause of cholesterol in one's system? I understand that it comes from fatty acids in animal fats, butter, nuts, etc., but I wonder why some people have high cholesterol levels and others don't although each are on similar diets.

My cholesterol level is 343, and my physician has me on a diet and tells me the level shouldn't be over 250 at the most. I'm 58, male, in good health, no heart attacks, no high blood pressure. Will appreciate some help.

Cholesterol is only an animal product. I keep getting letters asking about it being in nuts. It is not. The rub is that excess fat in the diet, particularly saturated fat found in animal fat, stimulates the liver to form increased amounts of cholesterol. Excess calories may do the same thing.

Your doctor is right to put you on a diet. It may help lower your cholesterol level, and it should be lowered.

Cholesterol is formed chiefly by the liver. The liver acts in many ways as a regulator of blood cholesterol. In some people with certain inherited characteristics the liver tends to form more cholesterol, even if the person is skinny and on a good diet. In other persons, even when obese, the liver seems not to form so much cholesterol. This may be a genetic factor, just as diabetes can be.

The cholesterol in your blood really comes from two sources, that manufactured by your own body, chiefly in the liver, and that absorbed in your food. Only a few foods are really high in cholesterol. Chief among these are the egg yolk and organ meats particularly brains.

I don't have too big a problem, but would like some information. My hair stops growing after a while and doesn't get very long. I would like to know if there's some way to stimulate hair to make it grow.

Contrary to some overly enthusiastic advertisement, there is absolutely no way to stimulate hair to grow where you want it to. That is why a number of people have turned to hair transplants. If a treatment were available that caused hair to grow successfully, it would have been used.

There are some interesting experimental projects using hormones to stimulate hair follicles, but that is about it.

Your hair is like an evergreen tree, and some hair is lost constantly while new hair is growing. The cycle and other characteristics (some inherited) control the length of your hair. Obviously a slowgrowing hair with a short life span won't get too long.

Rain wins 6th Series game again

World Series

And on the fourth day they played.

Or so it was hoped anyway in this wettest of World Series since 1962. At precisely 2:50 p.m. Monday, baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn called off game six between the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox for the third straight day and re-scheduled it for 7:30 p.m. tonight.

"The weather report for Tuesday is quite good," Kuhn explained. "The forecast for a Monday game wasn't all that bad either, but the condition of the field just wasn't suitable, we felt, for game conditions.

"Although we felt the field could be playable for a Tuesday afternoon game, it most surely will be playable by Tuesday night."

In addition to the steady rains pelting this city for three straight days, the bone chilling dampness that accompanied them took its toll on many of the Red Sox from owner Tom Yawkey right on down.

Yawkey, Manager Darrell Johnson, outfielder Dwight Evans, first baseman Carl Yastrzemski, reliever Rogelio Moret, sixth game starter Luis Tiant and third base coach Don Zimmer have all been battling severe chest colds all week.

"I've been sick, Looie's been sick and there's quite a few others," confirmed Evans, one of the Red Sox hitting stars (.353) thus far in the series.

"But I've played sick before and so have the other guys. Besides in this business you can't very well call in sick.

"We're the best mudders in the league," said Evans. "We always play good in this type of weather. We play and we win in this kind of weather.

"One thing," Evans emphasized, "we won't use the weather as an excuse if we lose. If we get beat, we get beat. But I think we can win the series."

The heavy rains which drenched Fenway Park was expected to help the Red Sox more than the Reds because Cincinnati relies heavily on a running game.

"It will definitely slow down their base stealing," said Johnson. "By their own words, it will slow them down. But the rainouts also mean that Don Gullett has gotten extra rest and that could work in their favor if the series goes to a seventh game."

Despite the latest postponement both managers — Johnson and Sparky Anderson of the Reds — seemed at last to have finalized their pitching plans.

Tiant, winner of two games already, will still be the Boston starter tonight in this "must" game for the Red Sox, who trail in games 3-2. Anderson, meanwhile, will stick with his choice on Monday, Gary Nolan, with Jack Billingham ready in the bullpen for long relief. The Nolan-Billingham combo also permits Anderson to hold back his ace, lefty Gullett, in the event of a seventh and deciding game.

If the Red Sox do extend the series to seven games, Johnson will pitch southpaw Bill Lee, his original choice (before all the rain) for the sixth game.

Oddly, a seventh game matchup of Gullett and Lee would bring the season down to a pair of lefties in Fenway Park — never a haven for southpaw pitchers with its shallow leftfield wall.

Tiant, who has yielded only four runs in two complete games against the Reds, will be bidding to become the 13th pitcher in World Series history to win three games, the last being Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers in 1968.

Nolan pitched four innings of the third game and gave up one run before removing himself because of a stiff neck.

The three-day rain postponement is the longest since 1962 when the sixth game of that series between the New York Yankees and San Francisco Giants also was held up three days. The 1911 series between the Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees is still the longest in the point of washout time, having lost six days to rain.

Four-way battle shaping up today in Mid-Suburban harrier finals

For the first time in four years, the Fremd Vikings won't be favored to run away with the Mid-Suburban League cross country finals when the league's 13 teams get together at 5 p.m. today at Union Oil.

As a matter of fact, if coach Ron Menely's North division champion Vikings win tonight, it just might be viewed as an upset — at least in some corners of the league.

Three other squads, including South dual-meet champ Prospect, figure to be right in the thick of the fight on Conant's district course. Palatine, a one-point district winner over Fremd Saturday, and Hoffman Estates, third in the district, are serious contenders, too.

"Four teams are capable of winning this thing," said Hoffman coach Jim Swift, who noted marked improvement from his Hawk runners Saturday.

"The last couple of weeks we haven't run very well, but Saturday I was pleased by the way the kids ran," Swift said. "We were just two or three seconds a man behind Palatine."

The Hawks were led by Steve Lind, who was eighth over-all.

"Our pack still ran a 20-second split," Swift added. "If we're going to win we're just going to have to improve our times by about five seconds each."

Prospect's Knights have made the biggest strides since the cross country season began. Coach Joe Wanner has watched his squad develop into a prime threat with the emergence, especially, of senior Bill Hrbek, junior Jack Pittman, and sophomore Mark Smith.

"I don't know who's going to win it," said Wanner, "but I know we're going to give it a shot. We're going over there with the belief that we can win."

The key to Prospect's hopes is their fifth man, currently Dave Hayes, another sophomore. Hayes has been improving with each race and Wanner feels the result hinges on the sophomore's performance.

"If we don't win, I think Palatine will," said the coach. "It all depends on how close Hayes gets to their fifth man. I think Hrbek will be in the top three and Pittman will be in the top five."

Palatine may be a slight favorite to take the MSL title from Fremd, last year's winner by a comfortable margin over Palatine and Conant.

The Pirates are running smoothly, as witnessed by their district win on the same course they'll be competing on today. Sophomores Chuck Elliott and Jon Dahlgren were Palatine's top two Saturday, followed closely by seniors Dave Horwath and Mike Monson and junior Tony Vargas.

"It's nice to have guys pick each other up like that," said coach Joe Johnson, who watched Dahlgren turn in his best race of the year.

"Monson had a bad day at Mattoon last week, but he came back in the district," continued Johnson. "Dahlgren gave a very fine competitive performance. For him, it was just a matter of believing in himself, having confidence in his abilities."

The only bad news for Palatine is that sophomore standout Tom Johnson will miss the rest of the season.

Tradition runs with Fremd. The Vikings have won three straight MSL titles — last year, in fact, they were champions on all three levels. They defeated Palatine in a dual meet earlier this month, and they lost the district title not because they let down — but because the Pirates ran a superb race.

Junior John Filosa leads a pack of Vikings that has benefited greatly from the running of sophomore Dan Inbody and senior Dean Elleman. Junior Dan Tischler and sophomore Bob Ratcliffe both seem to have recovered from a midseason lull.

Filosa is heavily favored to take the individual title, an honor he missed by just three seconds as a sophomore.

But Filosa will be severely tested by Hrbek, junior Darryl Robinson of Forest View, Craig Hanssen of Hersey, sophomores Joe Shields and Joe Schmidt of Buffalo Grove, junior Tom Choice of Rolling Meadows, and perhaps half a dozen other harriers.

Sue Kelly wins singles; Harper ties for crown

Harper and DuPage battled to a tie in the junior college state tennis tournament over the weekend, knotting with 13 points apiece.

For the Hawks of head coach Martha Bolt, it was their second consecutive state championship.

"We had a wonderful tournament," Bolt said. "We defended our title in beautiful style."

One of the most stylish was Sue Kelly, who won the state championship in singles. Kelly got a bye through the first round then topped Nina Domenico of Triton in the second round 6-1, 6-1.

In the third round Gloria Jackopchek of Elgin fell to Kelly 6-1, 6-0 and in the semi-finals Terry King of DuPage was Kelly's victim by a 6-2, 6-0 score.

Kelly captured the championship from DuPage's Tina Ostrowski 6-4, 7-5.

Cathy Aldana topped Jackie Dombo of Kishwaukee 6-4, 6-1 in her first round match then lost to Ostrowski of DuPage 6-2, 6-1 in the second round.

Harper's doubles team of Dianne DeWitt and Amy Redeen captured the state championship in their specialty.

Getting a bye through the first round DeWitt and Redeen then whipped Pendarvis and Harrison of Sauk Valley 6-1, 6-2, Mikonsis and Blair of DuPage 6-3, 6-4, Baina and Jordan of Illinois Valley 6-2, 6-1 and Potas and Blair of DuPage 6-2, 6-3 in the championship finals.

Carol Hopkins and Anita Jay handled Elgin's Pacelli and Reynolds 6-0, 6-1 in the first round of their doubles competition then fell to Potas and Blair of DuPage 6-2, 6-3.

Harper will have a week to prepare for the Region 4 tournament to be held at Waubonsee this Friday and Saturday. If they advance through that Harper will be eligible for the NJCAA national tournament to be held in Midland, Texas in May.

"Many of the girls we played this weekend," Bolt said, "will be at the Region 4 tournament this weekend. I think we have a good chance of advancing some people to the national tournament."

Hansen rolls 815 series

Fred Hansen of the Paddock Classic Traveling League rolled an 815 series Saturday evening in competition at Striker Lanes Buffalo Grove.

Hansen opened with a 290 game and followed with 256-269 for a series that sparked Formco Metal to a stunning 3,491 five-man series. Formco had an 1,184 opening game.

The match between Formco Metal and Beverly Lanes resulted in one of the highest scoring battles in area bowling history. Beverly had a 993 opener and then two games over 1,000 pins but still dropped seven points.

There were two series in the 700s with Mike Heffner of Formco rolling a 738 and Les Zikes of Beverly a 710. Heffner rolled games of 266, 248 and 224, and Zikes, a regular on the pro tour, had 210, 233 and 267.

Bowlers in the 600-plus bracket were Bob Kula (693), Mike Shoop (639) and Barry Stjernberg (606) of Formco and Bob Green (6,260 and Ken Miller (622) of Beverly.

Fred Hansen

Formco swept with games of 1,184, 1,154, and 1,153. Beverly, which had a 3,060 team series, lost seven despite such efforts as 993, 1,008, and 1,059.

Complete Paddock Classic details will appear in Wednesday's Herald.

Palatine extends hockey signup

There are still a few openings for the Palatine Amateur Hockey Assn. house league teams which will be kept open for only a short period of time. When these openings are taken, the teams will be filled and registration will be closed.

In the Mites Division, up to age eight, there are openings for 14 more players. The Squirts (9-10) has room for 10 more players, the Pee Wees (11-12) can handle nine more boys, the Bantams (13-14) can accept only five more and the Midgets (15-16) are full and closed.

Fees are $30 for Mites and $55 for all other age groups. Each boy will receive 26 hours of practices and games plus a team jersey to keep. There is one hour of ice time a week. Games and practices are at the Arlington Ice Spectrum on Monday, Wednesday and Friday between 4:30 and 9 p.m. plus Sunday morning.

Registration is at the Palatine Park District offices, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturdays 9 a.m. to noon.

Rain wins 6th Series game again

World Series

And on the fourth day they played.

Or so it was hoped anyway in this wettest of World Series since 1962. At precisely 2:50 p.m. Monday, baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn called off game six between the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox for the third straight day and re-scheduled it for 7:30 p.m. tonight.

"The weather report for Tuesday is quite good," Kuhn explained. "The forecast for a Monday game wasn't all that bad either, but the condition of the field just wasn't suitable, we felt, for game conditions.

"Although we felt the field could be playable for a Tuesday afternoon game, it most surely will be playable by Tuesday night."

In addition to the steady rains pelting this city for three straight days, the bone chilling dampness that accompanied them took its toll on many of the Red Sox from owner Tom Yawkey right on down.

Yawkey, Manager Darrell Johnson, outfielder Dwight Evans, first baseman Carl Yastrzemski, reliever Rogelio Moret, sixth game starter Luis Tiant and third base coach Don Zimmer have all been battling severe chest colds all week.

"I've been sick, Looie's been sick and there's quite a few others," confirmed Evans, one of the Red Sox hitting stars (.353) thus far in the series.

"But I've played sick before and so have the other guys. Besides in this business you can't very well call in sick.

"We're the best mudders in the league," said Evans. "We always play good in this type of weather. We play and we win in this kind of weather.

"One thing," Evans emphasized, "we won't use the weather as an excuse if we lose. If we get beat, we get beat. But I think we can win the series."

The heavy rains which drenched Fenway Park was expected to help the Red Sox more than the Reds because Cincinnati relies heavily on a running game.

"It will definitely slow down their base stealing," said Johnson. "By their own words, it will slow them down. But the rainouts also mean that Don Gullett has gotten extra rest and that could work in their favor if the series goes to a seventh game."

Despite the latest postponement both managers — Johnson and Sparky Anderson of the Reds — seemed at last to have finalized their pitching plans.

Tiant, winner of two games already, will still be the Boston starter tonight in this "must" game for the Red Sox, who trail in games 3-2. Anderson, meanwhile, will stick with his choice on Monday, Gary Nolan, with Jack Billingham ready in the bullpen for long relief. The Nolan-Billingham combo also permits Anderson to hold back his ace, lefty Gullett, in the event of a seventh and deciding game.

If the Red Sox do extend the series to seven games, Johnson will pitch southpaw Bill Lee, his original choice (before all the rain) for the sixth game.

Oddly, a seventh game matchup of Gullett and Lee would bring the season down to a pair of lefties in Fenway Park — never a haven for southpaw pitchers with its shallow leftfield wall.

Tiant, who has yielded only four runs in two complete games against the Reds, will be bidding to become the 13th pitcher in World Series history to win three games, the last being Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers in 1968.

Nolan pitched four innings of the third game and gave up one run before removing himself because of a stiff neck.

The three-day rain postponement is the longest since 1962 when the sixth game of that series between the New York Yankees and San Francisco Giants also was held up three days. The 1911 series between the Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees is still the longest in the point of washout time, having lost six days to rain.

7 more ABA teams seek to join NBA

Seven more American Basketball Assn. clubs Monday applied for membership to the National Basketball Assn. for the 1976-77 season. In another move, the ABA terminated its Baltimore franchise effective immediately, the league office said.

In a telegram sent to Lawrence F. O'Brien, the NBA commissioners, Kentucky, St. Louis, Virginia, San Antonio, Indiana, Utah and San Diego requested NBA membership to add to the earlier request of the New York Nets and Denver.

Meanwhile, ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere said about Baltimore's demise, "Earlier this summer, before Baltimore mad application, we were prepared to go with nine financialy strong franchises. The Baltimore franchise was awarded subject to the investors meeting certain financial commitments. The investor group has failed to meet these commitments, despite being granted additional time by the league to resolve their financial and internal problame.s

Giants surprise Buffalo

George Hunt kicked a 37-yard field goal with just six seconds left in the game to give the New York Giants a 17-14 upset victory over the Buffalo Bills in Monday night's nationally televised football game, handing the Bills their first loss of the season and spoiling the 29th 100-yard game of O. J. Simpson's career.

The Giants began their winning drive at their own 37 with just 1:02 left in the game after two Bills' field goal attempts just minutes earlier had failed. Giants quarterback Craig Morton mixed up his plays to drive the Giants to the Bills' 20 with nine seconds left when Hunt came in.

Hunt's kick went right through the middle of the uprights, leaving onl yMinnesota and Cincinnati unbeaten in the NFL.

The Bills had a chance to take the victory with 3:16 left in the game but John Leypoldt's 19-yard field goal attempt was wide.

The Giants had tied the score at 14 when Ron Johnson ran 16 yards around left end at 6:31 of the final period to cap a 90-yard drive. Morton hit Walker Gillette with two long passes and Joe Dawkins with another to highlight the drive.

The Bills, sticking mostly to the ground, then drove to inside the Giants' two but while the fans cheered for Coach Lou Saban to let the team try for a touchdown, he sent in Leypoldt, who usually has been accurate from close range.

Simpson ran 34 times for 126 yards and scored the Bills' first touchdown.

U.S. sprinters in golden show

The United States track and field team ended their competition at Mexico City in the Pan American Games on a high note Monday by winning five gold medals, and Cuba's Rigoberto Mendoza saved his team from a shutout by winning the marathon.

In the Olympic swimming pool, the U.S. walked away with another two gold meadls in the men's 3-meter springboard diving and the women's pairs synchronized swimming.

Turning in gold medal performances on the track for the U.S. were Tony Waldrop of Columbus, N.C., 3:45.09 for the 1,500 meters; the sprint relay teams in record times of 38.31 and 42.90 seconds, respectively; the men's 1600 meter relay team in 3:00.76, and Earl Bell of Jonesboro, Ark., with a pole vault of 17 ft. 8¼ ins.

Tim Moore of Cincinnati upset fello Ohioan, Lt. Phil Boggs of the Air Force Academy in the springboard event, 579.75 points to 576.36, while Robyn Curren and Amanda Norrish of the Santa Clara Acquatic club teamed to easily win the synchronized gold medal with 135.96 points.

The U.S. women's 1600 meter relay quartet, which had a five meter lead at the final changeover, lost to Canada when individual gold medalist Joyce Yakobowich made up the deficit and beat Kathy Weston by two meters in 3:30.36.

Mendoza won the marathon in an unofficial 2 hours 25 minutes, 2 seconds.

Did the Bears get off lucky?

The Chicago Bears will be happy to know they caught the Pittsburgh Steelers on an "off day" Sunday despite losing to the Super Bowl Champions, 34-3. "I think a win is a win and I like to be positive," defensive coordinator Bud Carson admitted, "but we did not play that well, particularly in the first half."

The St. Louis Cardinals Monday traded veteran outfielder Willie Davis to the San Diego Padres for outfielder Dick Sharon . . . Surgery was performed on Cleveland Indians Manager Frank Robinson to repair his injured left shoulder . . .

7 more ABA teams seek to join NBA

Seven more American Basketball Assn. clubs Monday applied for membership to the National Basketball Assn. for the 1976-77 season. In another move, the ABA terminated its Baltimore franchise effective immediately, the league office said.

In a telegram sent to Lawrence F. O'Brien, the NBA commissioners, Kentucky, St. Louis, Virginia, San Antonio, Indiana, Utah and San Diego requested NBA membership to add to the earlier request of the New York Nets and Denver.

Meanwhile, ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere said about Baltimore's demise, "Earlier this summer, before Baltimore mad application, we were prepared to go with nine financialy strong franchises. The Baltimore franchise was awarded subject to the investors meeting certain financial commitments. The investor group has failed to meet these commitments, despite being granted additional time by the league to resolve their financial and internal problame.s

Giants surprise Buffalo

George Hunt kicked a 37-yard field goal with just six seconds left in the game to give the New York Giants a 17-14 upset victory over the Buffalo Bills in Monday night's nationally televised football game, handing the Bills their first loss of the season and spoiling the 29th 100-yard game of O. J. Simpson's career.

The Giants began their winning drive at their own 37 with just 1:02 left in the game after two Bills' field goal attempts just minutes earlier had failed. Giants quarterback Craig Morton mixed up his plays to drive the Giants to the Bills' 20 with nine seconds left when Hunt came in.

Hunt's kick went right through the middle of the uprights, leaving onl yMinnesota and Cincinnati unbeaten in the NFL.

The Bills had a chance to take the victory with 3:16 left in the game but John Leypoldt's 19-yard field goal attempt was wide.

The Giants had tied the score at 14 when Ron Johnson ran 16 yards around left end at 6:31 of the final period to cap a 90-yard drive. Morton hit Walker Gillette with two long passes and Joe Dawkins with another to highlight the drive.

The Bills, sticking mostly to the ground, then drove to inside the Giants' two but while the fans cheered for Coach Lou Saban to let the team try for a touchdown, he sent in Leypoldt, who usually has been accurate from close range.

Simpson ran 34 times for 126 yards and scored the Bills' first touchdown.

U.S. sprinters in golden show

The United States track and field team ended their competition at Mexico City in the Pan American Games on a high note Monday by winning five gold medals, and Cuba's Rigoberto Mendoza saved his team from a shutout by winning the marathon.

In the Olympic swimming pool, the U.S. walked away with another two gold meadls in the men's 3-meter springboard diving and the women's pairs synchronized swimming.

Turning in gold medal performances on the track for the U.S. were Tony Waldrop of Columbus, N.C., 3:45.09 for the 1,500 meters; the sprint relay teams in record times of 38,31 and 42.90 seconds, respectively; the men's 1600 meter relay team in 3:00.76, and Earl Bell of Jonesboro, Ark., with a pole vault of 17 ft. 8¼ ins.

Tim Moore of Cincinnati upset fello Ohioan, Lt. Phil Boggs of the Air Force Academy in the springboard event, 579.75 points to 576.36, while Robyn Curren and Amanda Norrish of the Santa Clara Acquatic club teamed to easily win the synchronized gold medal with 135.96 points.

The U.S. women's 1600 meter relay quartet, which had a five meter lead at the final changeover, lost to Canada when individual gold medalist Joyce Yakobowich made up the deficit and beat Kathy Weston by two meters in 3:30.36.

Mendoza won the marathon in an unofficial 2 hours 25 minutes, 2 seconds.

Did the Bears get off lucky?

The Chicago Bears will be happy to know they caught the Pittsburgh Steelers on an "off day" Sunday despite losing to the Super Bowl Champions, 34-3. "I think a win is a win and I like to be positive," defensive coordinator Bud Carson admitted, "but we did not play that well, particularly in the first half."

The St. Louis Cardinals Monday traded veteran outfielder Willie Davis to the San Diego Padres for outfielder Dick Sharon . . . Surgery was performed on Cleveland Indians Manager Frank Robinson to repair his injured left shoulder . . .

Wisconsin's winter wonderland

An alternative to skiing Europe

If lack of time or money makes a winter skiing vacation to Europe or one of the Western states impossible, don't despair. There'll be all the fun and snow you could want at a variety of colorful ski resorts "next door" to Chicagoland in our neighboring state to the north.

Joan Collins, publicist for a number of these Wisconsin winter vacation spots, has compiled all the information you'll need to plan a weekend or longer at Alpine Valley in Southern Wisconsin, Cascade Mountain at Portage, Telemark in the northwoods, Scotsland in Oconomowoc, Alpen Inn

FRESH SNOW, skiing under the lights until 11 every night, 10 slopes and 12 chairlifts await skiers at Alpine Valley, East Troy, Wis. This sprawling Southern Wisconsin ski resort added a triple chairlift, an expanded beginnners' slope, plus a new rental-ticket building.

Travel Lore
By Clare Wright

on Big Powderhorn, Christmas Mountain or Devil's Head near the Dells, Green Lake Center at Green Lake or other nearby resorts in the Badger state.

Northwest suburban travel agencies can handle your reservations without an extra charge for their service, or you can write direct to any of the spots for further details.

AT ALPINE VALLEY in East Troy, skiers will be greeted this winter with shorter lift ticket and rental lines due to construction of a new ticket and rental building in front of the main lodge, Joan says.

Designed to expedite the rental of more than 2,000 complete sets of skis, boots and poles, as well as ticket sales, the expansion will also make things in the main lodge less hectic for skiers stopping in for a mid-day snack or just taking a short break.

Beginning skiers at this Southern Wisconsin resort will be treated to a new slow-speed triple chairlift on the expanded Timber Trail Run, which winds up near the popular Rathskeller. Alpine Valley features runs for every skier with the new three-skier chair bringing the total to 12 chairlifts — more than any other Wisconsin ski resort. Alpine's 10 runs are separated by wooded terrain. Lover's Lane, offering a long, meandering trip back to the chalet, stretches 3,000 feet.

Betty Kroll heads the Ski School there with a staff of 75 certified instructors offering instruction in both alpine and cross country skiing daily until 11 p.m.

SKIERS TAKING A break from the slopes can relax in the base lodge and pick up a quick bite to eat in either of two cafeterias or the pizza parlor, added last year. In addition, the Alpine dining room, overlooking the slopes, offers a full-fledged breakfast, lunch and dinner menu.

Alpine Valley is a favorite for many, including skiers on the World Professional Ski Tour who raced in front of 9,000 fans at Alpine Valley last February.

After only a year under new ownership, Cascade Mountain at Portage, Wis., already is taking on a bright, new look. Portage businessman, Hubert Hill, owner-manager, is adding lights to the North Wall, Cascade's well-known expert run, and improving the lighting on other slopes, so the entire hill will "light up" for night skiing from Wednesdays through Saturdays.

With Interstate 90-94 running only a few feet from the base of the hill, Cascade Mountain will be easily visible as skiers approach the area just 30 miles north of Madison.

To supplement natural snow, three more portable, airless snow fans have been added to the one already in operation to increase snowmaking capacity to 100 per cent of the 460-foot high hill.

SKIERS ARE transported uphill via a chairlift, T-bar and rope tows, and may then choose from six open slopes, with the longest run — Badger — offering a 5,300-foot leisurely trip down a slope easy enough for advanced beginners.

A host of instruction programs will be available this season under the direction of Tom Dorgan's Cascade Mountain Ski School. Along with the usual group and private lessons, the ski school will offer specials for families, tots, women and high school groups.

Cascade is one of the few areas offering a family plan, where children and parents can learn to ski together with a series of four 1½-hour lessons, all with the same instructor. For the 4-to 6-year-old set, one-hour lessons will be available on Saturdays and Sundays for only $2.

High school and other special groups can make use of one-hour lessons in groups of six or more for only $1 at night and $1.50 during the day. Regular group lessons will be $3 an hour.

AS FALL DESCENDS on the northwoods of Wisconsin, Mt. Telemark is busily readying for its traditional Thanksgiving ski season opening. Boasting the longest ski season in the Midwest, Telemark offers skiers some of the finest downhill and cross country skiing around, along with top-flight accommodations and entertainment in the $6 million Telemark Lodge.

While Telemark's eight downhill runs are still the main attraction, the 10 wilderness ski touring trails, some up to 15 kilometers long, are rapidly becoming popular. With recent trail expansion, Telemark boasts 65 kilometers of trails and has been rated by Ski Magazine as one of the top seven touring areas in the country.

The Chalet offers a choice of two cafeterias, a dining room, plus the "Rathskeller," where skiers can gather for late afternoon dancing on weekends to the beat of the Ratniks.

Telemark Lodge is the scene for night-time activities, with dancing and live music nightly in the top-floor nightclub. Past featured performers have included Chubby Checker, the Duke Ellington orchestra, conducted by Mercer Ellington and The World's Greatest Jazz Band. Special big-name entertainment is planned again this year over the Christmas-New Year's holiday. Free movies also are offered on Saturday nights, as well as a rock band in the theater or ballroom.

Lion Country Safari touts elephant rides

Elephant rides are one of the newest features at Lion Country in Atlanta, Ga., a wildlife preserve and entertainment park located about 20 miles south of Atlanta. Besides elephants, visitors might choose riding a llama, or a pony or perhaps a boat trip along the park's Lake Shanalee.

In addition to rides, Lion Country's 40-acre entertainment area features live animal shows, craft and souvenir shops and eating facilities. Nearby is the four-mile long Safari Trail, a natural animal habitat, where visitors, from the safety of their cars, can observe wild animals and birds like lions, rhinos, macaws and pelicans.

14-21	$454	$672	$218
22-45	$401	$500	$99

We'll fly you to Luxembourg, the heart of Europe, for less than any other scheduled airline.

In fact, we save you $346 on 1-13 day trips, $218 on 14-21 and $99 on 22-45. We even have a fare that will save you money and let you stay in Europe up to a whole year.

But, just because we cost less, don't think you get less. Besides our red and white wines, there are delicious hot meals. And complimentary cognac.

All of which means with Icelandic, you can still get a lot for a lot less.

An alternative to skiing Europe

If lack of time or money makes a winter skiing vacation to Europe or one of the Western states impossible, don't despair. There'll be all the fun and snow you could want at a variety of colorful ski resorts "next door" to Chicagoland in our neighboring state to the north.

Joan Collins, publicist for a number of these Wisconsin winter vacation spots, has compiled all the information you'll need to plan a weekend or longer at Alpine Valley in Southern Wisconsin, Cascade Mountain at Portage, Telemark in the northwoods, Scotsland in Oconomowoc, Alpen Inn

FRESH SNOW, skiing under the lights until 11 every night, 10 slopes and 12 chairlifts await skiers at Alpine Valley, East Troy, Wis. This sprawling Southern Wisconsin ski resort added a triple chairlift, an expanded beginnners' slope, plus a new rental-ticket building.

Travel Lore
By Clare Wright

on Big Powderhorn, Christmas Mountain or Devil's Head near the Dells, Green Lake Center at Green Lake or other nearby resorts in the Badger state.

Northwest suburban travel agencies can handle your reservations without an extra charge for their service, or you can write direct to any of the spots for further details.

AT ALPINE VALLEY in East Troy, skiers will be greeted this winter with shorter lift ticket and rental lines due to construction of a new ticket and rental building in front of the main lodge, Joan says.

Designed to expedite the rental of more than 2,000 complete sets of skis, boots and poles, as well as ticket sales, the expansion will also make things in the main lodge less hectic for skiers stopping in for a mid-day snack or just taking a short break.

Beginning skiers at this Southern Wisconsin resort will be treated to a new slow-speed triple chairlift on the expanded Timber Trail Run, which winds up near the popular Rathskeller. Alpine Valley features runs for every skier with the new three-skier chair bringing the total to 12 chairlifts — more than any other Wisconsin ski resort. Alpine's 10 runs are separated by wooded terrain. Lover's Lane, offering a long, meandering trip back to the chalet, stretches 3,000 feet.

Betty Kroll heads the Ski School there with a staff of 75 certified instructors offering instruction in both alpine and cross country skiing daily until 11 p.m.

SKIERS TAKING A break from the slopes can relax in the base lodge and pick up a quick bite to eat in either of two cafeterias or the pizza parlor, added last year. In addition, the Alpine dining room, overlooking the slopes, offers a full-fledged breakfast, lunch and dinner menu.

Alpine Valley is a favorite for many, including skiers on the World Professional Ski Tour who raced in front of 9,000 fans at Alpine Valley last February.

After only a year under new ownership, Cascade Mountain at Portage, Wis., already is taking on a bright, new look. Portage businessman, Hubert Hill, owner-manager, is adding lights to the North Wall, Cascade's well-known expert run, and improving the lighting on other slopes, so the entire hill will "light up" for night skiing from Wednesdays through Saturdays.

With Interstate 90-94 running only a few feet from the base of the hill, Cascade Mountain will be easily visible as skiers approach the area just 30 miles north of Madison.

To supplement natural snow, three more portable, airless snow fans have been added to the one already in operation to increase snowmaking capacity to 100 per cent of the 460-foot high hill.

SKIERS ARE transported uphill via a chairlift, T-bar and rope tows, and may then choose from six open slopes, with the longest run — Badger — offering a 5,300-foot leisurely trip down a slope easy enough for advanced beginners.

A host of instruction programs will be available this season under the direction of Tom Dorgan's Cascade Mountain Ski School. Along with the usual group and private lessons, the ski school will offer specials for families, tots, women and high school groups.

Cascade is one of the few areas offering a family plan, where children and parents can learn to ski together with a series of four 1½-hour lessons, all with the same instructor. For the 4-to 6-year-old set, one-hour lessons will be available on Saturdays and Sundays for only $2.

High school and other special groups can make use of one-hour lessons in groups of six or more for only $1 at night and $1.50 during the day. Regular group lessons will be $3 an hour.

AS FALL DESCENDS on the northwoods of Wisconsin, Mt. Telemark is busily readying for its traditional Thanksgiving ski season opening. Boasting the longest ski season in the Midwest, Telemark offers skiers some of the finest downhill and cross country skiing around, along with top-flight accommodations and entertainment in the $6 million Telemark Lodge.

While Telemark's eight downhill runs are still the main attraction, the 10 wilderness ski touring trails, some up to 15 kilometers long, are rapidly becoming popular. With recent trail expansion, Telemark boasts 65 kilometers of trails and has been rated by Ski Magazine as one of the top seven touring areas in the country.

The Chalet offers a choice of two cafeterias, a dining room, plus the "Rathskeller," where skiers can gather for late afternoon dancing on weekends to the beat of the Ratniks.

Telemark Lodge is the scene for night-time activities, with dancing and live music nightly in the top-floor nightclub. Past featured performers have included Chubby Checker, the Duke Ellington orchestra, conducted by Mercer Ellington and The World's Greatest Jazz Band. Special big-name entertainment is planned again this year over the Christmas-New Year's holiday. Free movies also are offered on Saturday nights, as well as a rock band in the theater or ballroom.

Lion Country Safari touts elephant rides

Elephant rides are one of the newest features at Lion Country in Atlanta, Ga., a wildlife preserve and entertainment park located about 20 miles south of Atlanta. Besides elephants, visitors might choose riding a llama, or a pony or perhaps a boat trip along the park's Lake Shanalee.

In addition to rides, Lion Country's 40-acre entertainment area features live animal shows, craft and souvenir shops and eating facilities. Nearby is the four-mile long Safari Trail, a natural animal habitat, where visitors, from the safety of their cars, can observe wild animals and birds like lions, rhinos, macaws and pelicans.

Excursion Fares from Chicago to Luxembourg September & October

Days	Icelandic	Other scheduled Airlines	You save
1-13	$454	$800	$346
14-21	$454	$672	$218
22-45	$401	$500	$99

We'll fly you to Luxembourg, the heart of Europe, for less than any other scheduled airline.

In fact, we save you $346 on 1-13 day trips, $218 on 14-21 and $99 on 22-45. We even have a fare that will save you money and let you stay in Europe up to a whole year.

But, just because we cost less, don't think you get less. Besides our red and white wines, there are delicious hot meals. And complimentary cognac.

All of which means with Icelandic, you can still get a lot for a lot less.

Free trip to Washington

Hankering to visit Washington, D.C. as part of your Bicentennial observances? You may win a week's vacation for two to that spot when you attend the Eastman Kodak multi-media travel show, "Profile '76," on Wednesday or Thursday, Nov. 5-6.

Air transportation for the Washington excursion is via American Airlines with accommodations at the Shoreham Americana, an Americana Hotel.

This trip is the major door prize offered by The Herald for the "Profile '76" show, the third such Kodak program the newspaper has sponsored. Numerous other prizes will also be awarded.

THE SHOW will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 5-6 in the Jimmy Durante Ballroom of the Arlington Park Hilton, Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road in Arlington Heights.

Free tickets for the Bicentennial travel show, cosponsored by the Hilable in the offices of Northwest suburton and American Airlines, are availban travel agents and all Herald offices.

"Profile '76" offers viewers a chance to enjoy the United States and meet some very likeable fellow citizens. You will compete in a tractor pull at the Indiana State Fair, join a covered wagon train, harvest wheat and mill flour.

For just a few minutes, you will be the teacher in a one-room schoolhouse in northwest Washington State. With an Alaskan lumberman, you see the United States from a treetop high above the Pacific.

The 90-minute travelogue is a combination of movie scenes, still pictures, stereo music and live narration. It's a Bicentennial program with a very personal point of view.

Agencies have 'Profile 76' tickets

Free tickets for the "Profile '76" show sponsored by The Herald are available at the following travel agents:

Tickets also are available at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel, Arlington Heights Camera Shop and Community Camera in Arlington Heights, and at all Herald offices.

One of nation's largest ghost towns gets new life

by BILL FARMER

JEROME, Ariz. — Hanging on for dear life from the cliffs of an Arizona mountain is one of the largest and newest and most densely populated (550 souls) ghost towns in America.

It is Jerome, near Prescott.

Fifty years ago, Jerome was home to 15,000 persons as they wrung out more than a $1 billion worth of copper, gold, silver, zinc and lead from Mingus mountain.

BY THE 1930s, the mines had been exhausted and the town was abandoned. A few sporadic re-openings failed to return Jerome to its glory.

Today, visitors are breathing new life into the ghost town, since most of the old buildings, weathered and abandoned, remain intact, clinging precariously to the sunrise side of Cleopatra Hill and overlooking the spectacular Verde River Valley that has carved a ribbon of desert color between Jerome and Sedona, Ariz.

Several old homes have been restored and are finding new popularity as retirement dwellings. Shops and stores, too, are again alive with merchandise and customers.

Jerome is not an artificial reproduction of what life was like at the turn of the century. It is the real thing.

THE PERSONALITY of the Old West — which is not that far bygone in youthful Arizona — is very much in evidence as a person strolls the steep, winding streets. It was a town of saloons and "salons" and of opera houses and churches.

And, of course, there is the jail. Or at least what's left of it. The jail at Jerome, you see, began sliding off the mountainside for some reason and its ruins lean toward gravity's continuing tug as visitors wonder aloud whether any lucky inmates were granted a pardon from Providence when the cell walls crumbled.

Once Arizona's third largest city, the town had dozens of restaurants and hotels, a few of which still are standing. But the most impressive mark left by the men and women who created Jerome is the mine area itself, a dizzying open pit that has made Mingus Mountain look a bit like a volcano because of the man-made crater.

'PROFILE 76'
A sight and sound celebration of life in the United States! People from Maine to Hawaii welcome you into their homes, their lives, and their dreams. Wide-screen panoramas melt into multi-image montages and action-packed movies as "Profile 76" introduces ordinary people, who do ordinary and improbable things in search of their 'silver linings.' With them, you rediscover America — on film.

TWO SHOWINGS:
Wednesday & Thursday
Nov. 5 & 6, at 8:00 pm
at the ARLINGTON PARK HILTON on Euclid Ave., just east of Route 53

She is survived by a son, Joseph (Lorraine) Schneider of Des Plaines.

Visitation is today from 1 to 10 p.m. in Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines.

A funeral Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Our Lady of Hope Catholic Church, 9700 W. Devon Ave., Rosemont. Burial will be in St. Joseph Cemetery, River Grove.

'74 state fair pacts declared void

Contractors who have not been paid for bills for the 1974 Illinois State Fair are not entitled to their money, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said in a recent opinion.

Scott issued the opinion at the request of Auditor General Robert G. Cronson. Scott said in the opinion that all contracts entered into by the State Fair Agency for the 1974 fair are void.

Scott said the agency had violated the Illinois Purchasing Act by not having rules or regulations for letting contracts; by letting contracts in excess of appropriations; and by not having a certificate of compliance from the Secretary of State.

Scott said legislation to provide payment of almost $1 million in debts that exceeded the fair agency's appropriation is not applicable. He said the legislation was aimed at providing payment for claims that were void for lack of appropriation, but would not authorize payment for contracts voided for other reasons.

46 Truckload Carpet Sale

Just in time for your fall remodeling!!!

Huge mill-direct discounts in hundreds of closeouts, surplus items, remnants and mill trials.

Plywood Minnesota does it again! This time we bought 46 truckloads of carpeting in the Dalton, Georgia area (70% of all the carpeting in the world is manufactured there.) The mills tell us "Nobody else buys in this large a quantity." This means each warehouse buys in carload lots. It illustrates once again how Plywood Minnesota's 48 warehouse buying power works to bring the lowest possible carpet prices to you year-round.

$4.99 per sq. yd. and lower on practically all 46 truckloads.

Many at $3.99 and $2.99. Some low as $1.99 per sq. yd. All prices reflect real bargains, but we know the low-priced items will move out fast.

'74 state fair pacts declared void

Contractors who have not been paid for bills for the 1974 Illinois State Fair are not entitled to their money, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said in a recent opinion.

Scott issued the opinion at the request of Auditor General Robert G. Cronson. Scott said in the opinion that all contracts entered into by the State Fair Agency for the 1974 fair are void.

Scott said the agency had violated the Illinois Purchasing Act by not having rules or regulations for letting contracts; by letting contracts in excess of appropriations; and by not having a certificate of compliance from the Secretary of State.

Scott said legislation to provide payment of almost $1 million in debts that exceeded the fair agency's appropriation is not applicable. He said the legislation was aimed at providing payment for claims that were void for lack of appropriation, but would not authorize payment for contracts voided for other reasons.

46 Truckload Carpet Sale

Just in time for your fall remodeling!!!

Huge mill-direct discounts in hundreds of closeouts, surplus items, remnants and mill trials.

Plywood Minnesota does it again! This time we bought 46 truckloads of carpeting in the Dalton, Georgia area (70% of all the carpeting in the world is manufactured there.) The mills tell us "Nobody else buys in this large a quantity." This means each warehouse buys in carload lots. It illustrates once again how Plywood Minnesota's 48 warehouse buying power works to bring the lowest possible carpet prices to you year-round.

$4.99 per sq. yd. and lower on practically all 46 truckloads.

Many at $3.99 and $2.99. Some low as $1.99 per sq. yd. All prices reflect real bargains, but we know the low-priced items will move out fast.
